Barry's Aims: Nomination, Beat LBJ, Keep Freedom

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater flashed across the continent Thursday and delivered a triple promise to capture the Republican presidential nomination, defeat Lyndon B. Johnson and preserve and defend freedom everywhere.

"Win we will!" Goldwater assured a roaring throng of well wishers who swarmed to the airport to wecome him to the Republican party's national convention city.

Massive Array

Backed by a massive array of delegate votes, Goldwater already is well on the way to making good on the first part of the pledge—to win the nomination. Prospects of his making it on the first ballot brightened.

The Arizona senator, who takes his case to the GOP Platform committee on Friday, said he believes the convention will adopt a document that all Republicans can "run on and work for."

"If the platform is such that I do not feel I can accept it I would do the honest thing—I would withdraw," Goldwater said, adding that has always been his position.

But Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, likewise predicting victory, kept on fighting a dogged battle against the Arizonan.

Scranton pounded away at Goldwater at hearings on the party platform and in sessions with newsmen. At the hearings he slashed at the senator and at the John Birch Society.

An estimated 4,000 partisans waited for Goldwater to come into the airport from Washington. Banners and signs of every description all added up to what the fans were chanting wildly: "We want Barry."

The senator came to town with an arrival statement all ready—a statement that blended together more predictions of a defeat for President Johnson and a bid for Republican unity in the coming political wars against the Democrats.

Waited For Cheers

He didn't read the statement, though. Instead he climbed onto an airplane boarding ramp, waited for the cheers to subside and, told his audience: "I am returning to San Francisco today to win next week the contest for the nomination of my party. I come to you today to promise you that I will preserve and extend freedom all over this country and all over this world.

"We're going to win next week. The chances are excellent that we will win on the first ballot. But win we will!"

Then, he said, Republicans will march forward together to defeat Lyndon Baines Johnson in November.

The convention opens for business Monday. But as always there was a preconvention whirl of assorted activity:

—Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota and a persistent political hopeful, said with realistic modesty: "It will be a near miracle if I do win the nomination."

Margaret Chase Smith

—William E. Lewis, campaign manager for Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, said the lady senator's name will go in nomination and Maine will give a first-ballot vote to its favorite daughter.

—Pickets and counterpickets may picket the convention hall next week, and a spokesman for the Congress of Racial Equality said, "We are determined to avoid violence." CORE leaders have said they will protest the possible choice of Goldwater for the nomination. The senator voted against the civil rights bill.

—Private detectives have inspected Scranton's suite with a possible view to fumigating it against electronic bugging and pronounced it clean—"not a bug in the place."

—The Goldwater team is talking of flying their man to the convention hall by helicopter should there be occasion for an acceptance speech. It may take special dispensation from the Federal Aviation Agency.

Hefty Lead

Goldwater has a hefty lead in prospective votes for the nomination at this point.

Before leaving Ohio, Gov. James A. Rhodes eased the way for the possible release of the state's 58 convention votes next Monday. They are his now on a favorite son basis and Goldwater forces say the bulk of them are destined eventually for the senator.

On his arrival here Rhodes denied that he had released the delegation already from its favorite son pledge, as an earlier Ohio account reported.

Scranton denounced the report from Ohio as "a complete phony." He said he had talked with Rhodes and: "He is not doing any releasing of the delegation."

Rhodes didn't say "I release" in formal words but that was the whole tenor of his statement and conversation before he took off for California and the convention.

The Ohio delegates voted at a caucus at home to stay with the governor on the first ballot here and to caucus again Monday—the opening day of the convention.

"During the caucus next Monday," Rhodes said in his statement, "those delegates who may wish to support their choice will be welcome to express their beliefs and persuade their colleagues."

NEWS BRIEFS

Svenson Given 7 Years Labor

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Capt. Alfred E. Svenson, described during his trial as a man who liked to play the big shot, was sentenced Thursday to seven years at hard labor for deserting to East Germany and stealing a jeep.

Svenson, 31, the only U.S. Army officer ever to be tried for deserting to the Communists also was dismissed from the service.

The Lithuanian-born captain from Scranton, Pa., rammed his jeep through a fence during East German border during maneuvers on May 4, 1963. He was expelled by Communist authorities a year and three days later as "unfit to be granted asylum."

Viet Cong Makes Third Attack

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Communist guerrillas launched their third attack Thursday in less than a week on special forces camps in the central highlands but were beaten off, U. S. sources reported.

The attack came in the early morning hours at Plei Djerang, a small forward camp in the jungles near the border of Cambodia. One Viet Cong guerrilla company attacked from one direction and a second company from the opposite side. The defenders beat off the attack with a loss of one killed and one wounded, U. S. sources said.

U. S. Proposes Bilateral Pact

GENEVA (AP)—The United States called on the Soviet Union Thursday to sign a bilateral disarmament treaty based on President Johnson's nuclear freeze proposal.

American Delegate Clare H. Timberlake told the 17-nation disarmament conference such a treaty offers "the best possible foundation for further progress toward disarmament and a genuine opportunity to put a halt to the arms race."

Hoover Considers Going To Miss.

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover is seriously considering a trip to Mississippi, where more than 100 agents are searching for three young civil rights workers missing nearly three weeks, it was learned Thursday night.

Hoover has made no final decision on whether to travel to Philadelphia, Miss., center of the search which also involves some 400 sailors.

The FBI refused to comment when asked about the possible trip by its 69-year-old director.

Assault, Battery Charges Placed

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Warrants were served Thursday on the Luzerne County Democratic party chairman, the vice chairman, and on a sergeant of the Nanticoke police force for their appearance Friday at a hearing on charges of assault and battery in connection with the political party's June 27 convention at the Nanticoke State Armory.

3 Negroes Sue Pistol-Waver

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) —Three Negroes filed suit Thursday against a segregated restaurant in the nation's first court test of compliance under the week-old civil rights law.

U.S. Dist. Judge Frank A. Hooper ordered the restaurant owner, Lester Maddox, to show cause at a July 17 hearing why an injunction to force compliance with the law should not be granted.

The suit was brought by George Willis Jr., Woodrow T. ewis and Albert L. Dunn who were chased from Maddox's restaurant last Friday. Maddox, waving a pistol, and a crowd of white persons with ax handles, chased the three Negroes away.

Stocks Mixed In Quiet Closing

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advance stalled Thursday and prices were mixed at the close of a quiet session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined for the first time in seven days, dropping 0.32 to 845.13.

Volume rose to 5.07 million shares from 4.78 million Wednesday.

Scranton Hits Birchers, Loses Platform Fight

Gas Truck Flips

SCIOTA — It took truck-driver Joseph Barnes, 49, of Luzerne nearly three hours to secure aid from passing motorists when his gasoline-laden rig overturned early yesterday morning, according to state police at the Stroudsburg substation. No one was injured.

Barnes' truck, carrying gasoline for the Union Petroleum Co. of Luzerne, struck the shoulder while heading south on Rt. 209 at Sciota Hill. The truck went into a three-foot ditch and overturned, police said, at about 6:10 a.m. A telephone pole was broken off as the truck went over.

Barnes said he knew he was not supposed to leave his disabled truck and stopped any number of passing motorists, asking them to notify police, according to the report. State police said they were finally notified at about 9 a.m.

Firemen At Scene

Both Stroud Twp. and Saylorsburg firemen spent the day at the scene, wetting down escaping gasoline with foam extinguishers and providing traffic control assistance, police said.

Gasoline remaining in the truck was drained into waiting tank trucks as firemen stood by with extinguishers. The trailer was righted by three wreckers without mishap. All traffic was halted during the draining and righting to prevent danger to passing motorists should the rig catch fire.

Damages to the tractor and tank trailer were estimated by police to be at least $1,000, plus the loss of 1,500 gallons of gasoline.

Police said no arrest was made, pending an investigation.

OVERTURNED — Truck driver Joseph Barnes, 49, of Luzerne, tried for three hours yesterday morning to get passing drivers to notify police that his gasoline laden truck, leaking badly, had overturned on Rt. 209 near Sciota. Police and firemen were finally notified at 9 a.m.

Florio Files $1 Million Suit Against Cyanamid Co.

NEW YORK — The first of many expected damage suits stemming from the June 26 Marshalls Creek explosion disaster was filed yesterday in Federal Court in New York.

John Florio, 21, of Pleasantville, N.Y., started the bandwagon rolling when his attorney filed the first official suit for $1 million in damages against the American Cyanamid Co., owner of the ill-fated trailer and 15 tons of explosives that went off, killed six, and injured 10.

Charges Injuries

Florio's suit charged he was injured because of the company's negligence.

At the time of the accident Florio, who was treated for injuries at the General Hospital of Monroe County, was traveling from Ohio to Connecticut looking for work.

He was released from the hospital hours after the disaster and returned to the scene.

"I was standing at the rear of the car when I heard a tremendous noise like a shotgun fired directly in my ear.

"The next thing I was lying 20 feet behind my car," Florio said on the day of the accident.

The attorney for Florio, who is a sociology student at Bethany College in West Virginia, said the company was "reckless, careless and negligent in shipping explosives and dangerous substances and chemicals without proper precautions . . ."

A spokesman for company headquarters in Wayne, N. J., said the explosion is under investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which will hold a hearing July 23 and 24 in Stroudsburg.

"The suit by Mr. Florio is one of many claims being processed by insurance companies," the spokesman said. "Since the matter now is being handled by the ICC, we cannot comment at this time."

McNamara Backs Chiefs On War Risk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite sharp Senate charges of "brinkmanship," Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara backed two top military leaders who said the United States is prepared to risk war with Red China to preserve South Viet Nam's independence.

McNamara told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at a closed session June 23 that the U.S. effort to save South Viet Nam "carries the risk of escalating to military actions outside the border of South Viet Nam."

In his testimony, released Thursday, McNamara defended statements made in separate interviews by Adm. Harry D. Felt, outgoing commander in chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific, and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, retiring commander of the American advisory and training mission to South Viet Nam.

McNamara was questioned sharply about the interviews by both Democrats and Republicans.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, ranking Republican member of the committee, demanded to know "who speaks for American policy?"

"They say something this committee has not been told is official American policy," Hickenlooper said.

Brinkmanship

"Isn't that a form of brinkmanship that they are playing?" asked Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark. "They don't wish to say that we won't fight under any circumstances and they don't want the President to pledge this."

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who has long been a critic of U.S. policy in South Viet Nam, told McNamara:

"I think it is a shocking thing, the military being allowed to be unleashed in the matter of foreign policy."

McNamara told the committee that the United States is seeking to develop "a sufficiently strong military posture to deter our opponents from either political or military aggression, and through that deterrence to avoid a breakdown of the peace."

McNamara said no responsible military or civilian official in the Defense Department has spoken on a foreign policy matter without specific approval from the highest ranks of the U.S. government.

E-Burg High Hit By Ticket Racket

EAST STROUDSBURG — The traffic ticket racket that is sweeping the state invaded the ranks of the public schools when an East Stroudsburg Area school driver training car — which seldom leaves N. Courtland St. — received a summons from the City of Pittsburgh.

School directors were at a loss to explain how the car could have been spotted in Pittsburgh on June 5, after school was out and the car not being used.

"Its a shame the way these cities are using this racket," said director Irving Foltz.

"It may have been an honest mistake," said solicitor Alex Bensinger.

"That I don't believe," Foltz said ending the discussion.

Lutherans Approve Racial Law

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A statement condemning racial discrimination was voted into church law today by the 3.2 million-member Lutheran Church in America, largest Lutheran body in the country.

By voice vote, delegates to the church's second biennial convention adopted the law by an overwhelming majority. No exact vote count was taken.

The law instructs church members to worship together without regard to race; and urges the church and its various agencies to support secular laws aimed at eliminating racial barriers in employment, education, house and public accommodations.

No Enforcement

The law contained no enforcement provisions as such. However, it established a coordinating committee "to explore ways of implementing the actions of the church in race relations."

Commenting on the element of enforcement, the Rev. Dr. Franklin C. Fry, president of the church, said, "The church has no police powers. That's not our spirit. Ours is one of persuasion."

He said, however, the various synods of the church would take a hand in disciplining congregations that fail to abide by the law.

Good Morning!

Service Pay Hike Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 2.5-per cent pay increase for most of the 2.7 million uniformed members of the military forces won surprisingly quick and unanimous approval of the Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the committee pushed the measure toward floor action in a surprise move linked with the pending pay raise for federal civilian employes, including congressmen.

Russell told newsmen:

"I could not have gotten this out of committee with a block and tackle if the Senate had not agreed to the pay increases for most civilian government workers last week."

Proposed Pay Boost

The proposed pay boost for the armed services—which has President Johnson's endorsement—would come on top of an increase voted last year that averaged about 17 per cent for officers and 12.7 per cent for enlisted personnel.

The new raises would range from $49 a month for top generals and admirals to $3 for recruits. But commissioned officers with less than two years service would get a special break—an 8.5 per cent jump which would range from $22 to $34 monthly.

The 2.5 per cent applies to the base pay for all other officers and to enlisted personnel—including noncommissioned officers—with more than two years service. Military personnel get quarters and subsistence special allowances in addition to base pay.

Roseto Man Won't Quit Council Post

ROSETO—Leonard Romano, Roseto council president, Thursday night refused to resign his post.

John Martucci, chairman of the law committee, and Mayor George Giaquinto both asked Romano to resign his position as president of the council, but to remain a council member.

Atty. Phillip Ruggiero, council solicitor, told the meeting that he had written to the Department of Internal Affairs for an opinion. He suggested that council table the matter until he received the letter from Harrisburg. Council approved his suggestion.

Romano is charged with bookmaking and is on bail pending court action.

William W. Scranton

Governor Attacks 'Weird Extremism'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—William W. Scranton won spectators' cheers Thursday with a call for Republican disavowal of the John Birch Society, but his backers lost badly in their first test of strength in the Platform Committee itself.

The Pennsylvania governor roused the GOP platform hearings to life by charging that the far-right society—whose support Sen. Barry Goldwater accepts—is trying to grasp control of the party and should be denounced by name.

Scranton sailed into "this weird presence in America" as representing an extremism alien to our shores and one which is seeking the subversion of liberty."

Onlookers Crammed

Onlookers who were crammed into the hearing room cheered, but Goldwater backers on the committee did not. Two hours later, the Scranton forces failed by a margin of more than 5 to 1 to get the committee to revise its platform-drafting rules.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, field general for Scranton, said the setback leaves no question but that there will be dissent from the platform version to be drafted this weekend.

This could mean that Scranton's small but vocal following will precipitate a floor battle in the Republican convention next week, in their effort to write a more liberal party policy that the front-running Arizona conservative can accept.

In Thursday's initial test of strength, Scranton backers sought to soften what they called a gag rule hampering revision or amendment of the draft platform. They lost by voice vote, and then demanded a roll-call of the committee.

Roll Call

It would have taken only about 20 members to bring about the roll call. But when those in favor were asked to rise, just 16 stood up.

Scranton's arrival at dragging platform hearings generated something like convention-style excitement for the first time. Onlookers cheered, clapped and chanted "We want Scranton, we want Scranton" as the underdog strode into the hearing room.

Goldwater partisans soon raised a "We want Goldwater" counter cry. And when the Pennsylvania governor began firing one barbed arrow after another at his rival—without ever mentioning his name—the 60 - odd Goldwater men on the 100-member committee sat on their hands.

So did some other members. About one-fourth of the members applauded again and again—as did the overwhelming majority of sideline spectators.

Scranton's shafts were plainly intended to identify Goldwater with extremism, and thus to pry some Republican "moderates" away from the senator's overpowering strength when the voting starts in next week's convention.

39 Die In Air Crash

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP) — A United Air Lines Viscount airliner with 39 persons aboard crashed and burned late Thursday in the East Tennessee foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains. There apparently were no survivors.

Allan Atkin, manager of the Knoxville airport, said the plane was Flight 823, bound from Washington to Knoxville.

The plane crashed in a wooded hollow off U.S. 411, 8 miles northeast of this town near the Tennessee-North Carolina line.

In Philadelphia, Bill Donahue, a supervisor for United Airlines, said Flight 823 originated in Philadelphia. He said it was scheduled to stop at Washington, Knoxville and Huntsville, Ala., where it would terminate.

Donahue said he did not know how many passengers were aboard.

He emphasized that United in Philadelphia had no official notification that 823 was the flight that crashed.

Witnesses said the low-flying plane was smoking and exploded in the air before it crashed.

Ike Insists He's Neutral

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) —Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower insisted Thursday night he was remaining neutral in the fight for the Republican presidential nomination.

At a terse trainside news conference before leaving for the GOP National Convention in San Francisco, Eisenhower said only: "I am showing no partiality to anyone. I've been completely consistent in this and I have double - crossed no one."

Eisenhower's statement appeared to dim hopes of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton that the two-term president would endorse the governor's bid for the nomination against Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Two Senators, 61, Wrestle Over Collins Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sens. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., and Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., set Capitol Hill agog Thursday by engaging in a 10-minute wrestling match on the terrazo floor of a Senate Office Building corridor.

There have been physical clashes between members of Congress many times before but nearly always in a flareup of anger.

Dignified Senators

This affair between two normally dignified senators, each 61 years old, was remarkable in that it was good-tempered and decided upon calmly and coolly. No sharp words were exchanged before or after the tussle.

Neither man looks his age and Thurmond, especially, prides himself on his physical fitness. He told reporters he did 59 pushups Thursday morning as part of a normal routine.

Each is active in the Army Reserve, Thurmond as a major general commanding the unit in which Yarborough serves as a colonel.

The two men serve on the Senate Commerce Committee which was trying to get a quorum—nine of its 17 members—to act on President Johnson's nomination of former Florida Gov. LeRoy Collins to be director of the new Community Relations Service.

Thurmond strongly opposes the nomination and Wednesday locked a quorum by standing in the corridor outside the committee room while only eight senators showed up inside.

Another session was called for Thursday morning and the South Carolinian again took up his post in the hall.

Grabbed Thurmond

Yarborough, on his way into the committee room, made a grab for Thurmond's arm and said, "Come on, Strom, help us make a quorum."

Thurmond good - naturedly took hold of the Texan's arm and replied, "No, I'll keep you out."

Before the unbelieving eyes of three reporters and a couple of bystanders, the senators then agreed to wrestle for it. The understanding was that if Yarborough lost, he would stay outside, and that if Thurmond lost, he would attend the meeting.

When the match was broken up by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., the Commerce Committee chairman, Thurmond had Yarborough on his back on the floor but the Texan still was struggling for a good hold.

Yarborough went into the room, this made a quorum and Thurmond entered, too.

Vote Is 16 to 1

The group quickly confirmed Collins 16-1, with only the South Carolinian registered opposition.

The Community Relations Service was set up under the 1964 civil rights law to help local communities in resolving racial disputes.

Rights Workers Get Safety Tips

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Friends Peace Committee has brought out a guide for civil rights demonstrators telling them in detail how to behave on sit-in and other non-violent demonstrations.

The 130-page text is called "A Manual for Direct Action."

The Quaker publication touches upon the personal safety and well-being of the demonstrator, offering this counsel:

"You should relax your body as much as possible, for tissues can be damaged and torn when your are lifted or dragged if your muscles are tensed . . .

"Wear loose clothing in order not to be choked when dragged . . . Wear two sets of underclothes so that you can wear one set while washing the other. This is also helpful padding if you are dragged about by the police."

The manual gives this reason for non-violence:

"Violence is what police and armies know how to deal with —they are experienced in this. What baffles them is the use of disciplined non-violence — they actually do not know what to do with it."

A spokesman for the peace committee said the book was first published in mid-June and several hundred copies sent to Oxford, Ohio, for the civil rights training sessions sponsored by the Council of Federated Organizations. The book was written by Martin Oppenheimer, assistant director of the American Friends Service Committee's Lakey, executive secretary of studies program and George the peace committee.

The committee says Oppenheimer will teach sociology at Haverford College this fall. Lakey took part in last spring's civil rights upheaval in nearby Chester, was arrested and spent some time in jail.

Injured Trooper Rests At Home

EPHRATA, Pa. (AP) — A state trooper, shot while aiding in the pursuit of three gunmen June 14, was released Thursday from Ephrata Community Hospital.

Edward Herbst, 35, of Nazareth, will rest at home indefinitely while recuperating from a gunshot wound in the face.

He may be unable to testify in a Lancaster grand jury investigation into activities of the three Wisconsin men involved in the shooting along the Pennsylvania Turnpike near Manheim.

Another trooper, Fred W. Borell, 22, of Reamstown, who was shot in the leg, will be able to testify as a witness.

Luzerne County Gets State Grant

HARRISBURG (AP) — An allocation of $4,500 for homemakers for the aging in Luzerne County received approval Thursday of the Department of Public Welfare.

The state pays up to 50 per cent of such costs. The program is geared to meet the needs of the aging who do not require specialized care.

Tate Asks Loan To Be On Ballot

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mayor James B. J. Tate says he will ask the city council to place a $98 million loan for extension of the city's subway system on the November ballot.

He said he will request an additional $36 million in federal aid for the extension of the subways into the northeast section and deeper into South Philadelphia.

Pennsylvania Labor Starts Political Action Campaign

By VINCENT P. CAROCCI

HARRISBURG (AP)—Organized labor in Pennsylvania is preparing to mount an intensified political action campaign among its membership for the November general election and each year hereafter.

Specifically, the campaign is aimed at:

—Voter registration of all union members and their families and "all other citizens in our communities."

—A "realistic and effective 'get-out-the vote' activity."

—A continuing education campaign on the issues among all union members and their families and "all other groups within the communities."

Implied in all this is a political threat to legislators considered opposed to labor's positions.

The campaign is to be financed by a new $200,000 "special defense fund" authorizzed at the state AFL-CIO annual convention last May in Pittsburgh.

The convention unanimously adopted a resolution calling for a three cent increase in the dues of each member, with the money to be set aside each year in a separate fund for this political activity.

Harry Boyer, president of the state AFL-CIO, said the fund was created because:

"Increasingly the trend to stifle unions is at the state legislative level. This money will be used to acquaint the membership of the dangers involved."

The authorizing resolution specifically prohibits the money from being used in support of candidates for public office. . "

However, Boyer agrees that in this political year, personalities will inevitably creep into labor's discussions of the issues.

Telling the union membership how a certain legislator voted on a certain issue is not the same "spending money on a candidate," he said.

Determining Role

Two issues close to labor's heart played a determining role in creating the fund—unemployment compensation and right-to-work.

Organized labor took a beating this year when the General Assembly adopted the Scranton administration's U.C. revision program.

At the same time, labor held that the U.C. fight was just a prelude to a bigger battle yet to come—an effort to adopt right-to-work legislation in Pennsylvania which would outlaw the closed union shop.

Since the fund, which went into effect July 1, won't be available in one lump sum, labor's campaign prior to the November election obviously will be limited by the amount of money and time available, Boyer said.

He added that the campaign this year will be concentrated in 14 counties across the state, but he declined to identify the counties.

Susquehanna Committee Seeks Name

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Study committe at work on long-range development plans for the Susquehanna River basin accepted the added responsibility Wednesday of finding a new name for the big river's northern section.

The northern section is called simply the North Branch. The proposal was made at closing sessions Wednesday of the Susquehanna River Basin Coordinating Committee that a more appropriate name be found for that portion of the river.

The committee agreed to give the matter some attention between now and its next meeting. It also put on its study agenda the question of how to alleviate driftwood and debris which flows down the Susquehanna into the Chesapeake Bay.

Fourth Meeting

This was the fourth meeting of the committee. The next session was tentatively set for the Elmira-Corning area of New York state, probably on Oct. 13-15.

The committee is composed of representatives of seven federal agencies and the Susquehanna basin states of Maryland, New York and Pennsylvania. The study will continue to 1969. The committee is to report its findings and recommendations to Congress.

About 130 persons registered for the two-day meeting here. The sessions were devoted to subcommittee reports on such subjects as flood control, water quality, pollution, recreation, and related items. No final actions were taken.

The purpose of the general committee's efforts is to devise an over-all plan of development for the entire Susquehanna basin.

Court Postpones Rights Cases

MEDIA, Pa. (AP)—The Delaware County court Wednesday postponed until October 18 the cases of 240 civil rights demonstrators arrested in Chester earlier this year

Part Three Of Cancer Series

Researchers Look For Magic Pill

EDITOR'S NOTE — One of the goals of many of the nation's cancer fighters is the development of means of preventing—not just curing—cancers in human beings. The following, last of three articles, explains what is happening in this field.

By ALTON BAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—One day you may take a daily pill to prevent major cancers.

And take shots of a vaccine to prevent leukemia, as you do against polio.

When? Optimistically within 5 to 10 years.

Heartening fact is these are serious goals envisioned now by topnotch cancer researchers. Others are driving toward another objective: strengthening the body's natural defenses against cancer.

And meanwhile there is a good deal a person can do by and for himself to escape America's second greatest lethal disease.

Motto

"Discovery is our business," reads the motto on the wall of the University of Chicago laboratory of Dr. Charles Huggins, renowned researcher who pioneered the role of hormones in controlling some cancers.

He and associates have discovered pills that prevent breast cancer in rats.

The rats always get breast cancer three weeks after eating a meal containing a cancer-causing chemical, nicknamed DMBA. But if they take the pill a day before taking the DMBA, they are completely protected.

The protector pills are naphthacene and azonaththalene, in pinpoint amounts, just a few micrograms. Dr. Huggins thinks they work, in part, by "coating" the DNA of living cells, acting as a kind of shield against the arrow of DMBA.

DNA is shorthand for deoxyribonucleic acid. The genes that control the destiny of cells are believed to be composed of DNA molecules, arranged in precise sequences or code form.

Immune To Cancer

"In 10 years, we may have our own cancer protectors, to take in daily pills, to make us immune to cancers caused by hydrocarbons," says the white-haired, soft-spoken scientist.

DMBA is a hydrocarbon, and humans are exposed to it and to many similar chemicals in tobacco smoke, in soot, in some foods, in insecticides. Many specialists believe the "hits" they score on DNA, the genetic material, give rise to the wayward gene of cancer.

A cigarette smoker, Dr. Huggins says he "knows that smoking does cause lung cancer" but takes his own chances. For he also believes that small amounts of cancer-causing chemicals in smoke can act as protectors—able to set up a defense unless the person is particularly susceptible, or gets an overwhelming dose.

That, he says, could explain why most smokers don't get lung cancer and also why a very large and growing number do.

Vaccine

A vaccine against leukemia, and perhaps other types of cancers, may well come earlier.

"I am confident that a virus or viruses of human leukemia will be isolated soon—if it has not already been done," says Dr. James T. Grace Jr. of Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

"It might turn out to be a very common virus, harbored by most people, but with only a few becoming victims of it. A vaccine could then be prepared against it."

Such a vaccine could create protective antibodies to prevent the leukemia virus from acting to change some DNA into a cancer-causing gene.

The problem might turn out to be more complicated than that—if, for example, the causative virus was already an intimate part of the genetic machinery, just "sleeping" there so to speak until some event stirred it into action.

If some virus does cause leukemia, there is absolutely no evidence that it is contagious, passing from a patient on to other persons, says Dr. Sidney Farber of Children's Hospital in Boston. Only a very tiny percentage of people ever develop leukemia. Leukemia or other forms of cancer are not known to be catching, by all present evidence.

Most people never get obvious cancer, of any kind. The puzzle really is why a rather small percentage is victimized.

Part, at least, of the answer could lie in natural body defenses.

Something obviously goes amiss once a cancer takes hold.

One idea is that the patient's defensive or mechanism for immunity becomes deficient in some way.

Another is that the cancer itself produces some chemical agent which depresses the immunity reaction, or the ability to resist the foreign and undesired tissue.

At Roswell Park, Drs. John and Ruth Graham, husband and wife, are beginning to narrow down what that kind of cancer-produced sabotaging agent might be. They hope to isolate it.

If they can, then they might find an antidote to the agent to restore the person's own normal and even curative defense mechanism against his own cancer.

And, as a by-product, the suppressive agent (made by cancer tissue) might itself be used to help make transplanted or borrowed organs, such as a kidney or liver or gland, "take" or survive in a person who needs to borrow a living, vital organ.

Thus on many fronts goes the struggle against cancer, by literally thousands of men and women hunting for and only sometimes finding clues to the great puzzle.

Scientists are hammering at the core of the puzzle—the wayward gene, how it gets that way, how to make it behave.

"In science," says Dr. Huggins, "one experiment leads to another. It is like a bucket brigade, carrying the water that finally will be dumped on the flame."

Classes Assured For M. Smithfield

EAST STROUDSBURG — Students and parents of the Middle Smithfield School were assured last night by the East Stroudsburg Area Joint School Committee that all-day classes will be held this Fall.

The school was extensively damaged by the June 26 Marshalls Creek explosion.

To replace lost classroom space, the committee decided to press into service the Bushkill school cafeteria, Smithfield school library, a room at the J. M. Hill School and two rooms in the Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Church.

Carl Secor, supervising principal, explained the move to provide all-day classes for the Middle Smithfield students will require closing the cafeteria at Bushkill and require students to the church rooms to carry their lunches.

Near Home

Secor said the arrangement is desirable "because it will leave two large groups of Middle Smithfield students near home." He said some transportation problems remain to be ironed out.

Pauline Peterson, special assistant to Secor, said no schedule has been set up indicating what grades will attend classes in the various buildings.

Repairs By January

Paul Nauman, committee president, said the committee hopes to have the Middle Smithfield school repaired by January, 1965.

Lee Everett and Associates of Allentown, school district architects have been engaged to set specifications for testing the school's damage in an effort to determine what will have to be done to repair the building.

The architects said they will have the specifications ready within two weeks.

In other action at a meeting in the junior-senior high school, the committee accepted a report from Willard Stettler, board treasurer, showing the following year-end figures:

$70,614 Balance

Total 1963-64 receipts, $1,133,908; disbursements, $1,063,294, and balance of $70,614.

The committee also approved a pilot program of "adaptive physical education" for the coming school year.

Secor explained the program is geared to provide physical education adapted to the needs and limitations of individual students.

The program, which will become compulsory in all state public schools in 1966, will be run in co-operation with East Stroudsburg State College and the Dept. of Public Instruction.

The committee also authorized the hiring of Mrs. Alma Miller Sutton as an elementary teacher in the Bushkill school at a salary of $6,600 per year. Mrs. Sutton has 12 years teaching experience.

130 Complain Of Service By Mountainhome Water Co.

CANADENSIS — Complaints against the Mountainhome Water Co. were voiced last night at the Barrett Township Supervisors meeting by Mrs. Whitley Schleiker, of Mountainhome.

Mrs. Schleiker presented a petition with 130 names to the supervisors, stating four complaints against the water company. The petition has been filed with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission. It complains of:

1. Water shutoff with no notification.
2. Low water pressure.
3. Invasion of privacy.
4. Excessively high water rates.

In processing the petition, the PUC received rebuttal from Mrs. Rosa Hawk, president of the Mountainhome Water Co.

Concerning the water shutoff complaint, the company cited a broken water main and emergency repairs. Notification was given in The Daily Record of a recent shutoff for pipe flushing.

Mrs. Schleiker said that was the first time customers had ever been notified of a shutoff. She said it came as a direct result of the circulation of the petition.

According to the water company's statement to the PUC, water pressure at the highest point in the system is 60 pounds minimum.

Mrs. Hawk told the PUC that it was necessary to investigate additional fawcets and the use of outdoor sprinklers. Mrs. Schleiker said it was done late at night with the use of spotlights and headlights of cars.

Mrs. Schleiker maintained that water rates of $70 a year were excessively high for the lack of service and water pressure.

The PUC did not criticize the rates.

Findings by State Department of Health water tests revealed high copper content, but otherwise satisfactory water.

In other business, the board resolved to adopt an ordinance opening the Charles Vogt road on July 24 at a special meeting at the school.

The vote must follow advertisement of the ordinance.

A second resolution was passed supporting the Pocono Mountains Airport with a one quarter mill tax on current township property assessment with the first payment due Dec. 1, 1964, and the last in 1973.

The appropriation for the airport amounts to about $2,000.

The supervisors approved the subdivision of Olympia Village on condition of payment of a bill of $10 to Edward Hess, township engineer, for an inspection survey to make sure it complies with the township subdivision ordinance.

The developers are John and Olympia Meenan. The site is north and parallel to Oak Lane in Mountainhome.

Car Demolished By 16-Year-Old

ANALOMINK — A 16-year-old Mt. Pocono youth escaped injury yesterday when his 1960 car spun around on Rt. 191, hit a tree, a power pole, a school bus stop sign, a fence by the Analomink School and then continued some 100 feet down the road, according to H. W. Tebbs, Stroud Twp. police chief.

Tebbs said the youth, Russell W. Eggert Jr., was driving his father's car when it went out of control. The car was totally demolished, he said.

Appealing School Boards Must File Within 30 Days

STROUDSBURG — Four school boards with appeals attached to the Monroe County School Board's reorganization plan — approved Tuesday by the state Council of Basic Education — must file new appeals within 30 days.

The boards must now appeal to the State Board of Education — which must also approve the four-district plan before it can become final.

John Litts, county superintendent of schools, said yesterday the four boards will be officially notified of the procedure and they must submit five copies of the appeal to the state board and one to the secretary of the county board.

Appeals have been filed by school boards from East Stroudsburg Borough and Eldred, Ross and Porter Townships.

If the appeals are disallowed the county's present 19 individual districts would become four. The four proposed districts are Stroud Union, Pleasant Valley, Pocono Mountain and East Stroudsburg area.

Before accepting the county plan Tuesday, some members of the basic council voiced objection to Act 299, that forces them to approve something so far away from the act's standards.

Based on the 1961-62 pupil population, the four proposed districts range in size from 930 to 2,984.

Minimum of 4,000

The new reorganization law, passed in 1963, calls for districts with a minimum student population of 4,000.

It was reported that one council member asked what would happen if the council refused to approve the plan.

The reply was that the Scranton administration-backed law requires automatic approval if the proposed plan contains no more administrative units or no smaller units than existed on Sept. 12, 1961.

The county had four administrative units in 1961 — the same four proposed in the current plan.

The 1961-62 student population of the four proposed county districts was:

Pleasant Valley, 930; Pocono Mountain, 1,740; East Stroudsburg area, 2,267, and Stroud Union, 2,984.

Foltz Gives Teacher Keys

STROUDSBURG — Irving W. Foltz, former director of secondary education at East Stroudsburg State College, gave the Stroudsburg Rotary Club his "Keys" to teaching yesterday.

He said good teaching depends on the instructor's ability to relate material to the experience of students. "All things are interpreted in the light of past experience," he said.

Foltz became principal of the junior high school in East Stroudsburg in 1924, before going to ESSC.

He is now treasurer of the East Stroudsburg Borough School Board and a member of the East Stroudsburg Area Joint School Committee.

Lambert Cadets Set For Parade

STROUDSBURG — Lambert Cadets Junior Drum and Bugle Corps of VFW Post 2540, will participate in the Washington, N.J., tercentary parade Saturday, at 3 p.m.

Boys are asked to report at the post home in uniform at 12 noon on Saturday. A color photo of the group will be taken before the parade.

Inspectors Praise Monroe's Surplus Food Program

STROUDSBURG — Federal and state surplus food officials who this week inspected Monroe County's surplus food operation, headed by H. Ray Saunders, reported yesterday that "Monroe County has a fundamentally sound program."

Claude O. Smith of the state Dept. of Property and Supplies, Bureau of Surplus Food, and Herbert Strum, of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, said that there were a few "minor deficiencies," but that as a whole, the program was ably administrated.

The men told the commissioners that the deficiencies concerned the storage procedure for cheese and powdered eggs, and failure to protect adequately against rodents.

"You have no rodents there now, so it's best you institute a program for prevention," Strum said.

Saunders has reported that before his first recertification, 2,800 people were on the dole for surplus food, but that he has cut the number receiving the aid to 1,400.

Recertification of surplus food registrants occurs biennially, with the next recertification period beginning at the end of this month.

Smith and Strum said they would like to see the county appoint an assistant for Saunders, "because the workload is very great on distribution days and at recertification times."

They said that the assistant would work part-time, perhaps five days a month, and could take over for Saunders in the event he went on vacation or was incapacitated.

Saunders Complimented

"Ray's doing a fine job," Smith said, "but the work is too great for one man."

Strum said that Monroe County shouldn't bank too heavily on being included in the Federal Food Stamp Plan, because this program was to be used first in distressed and poverty stricken areas.

Playground Staff Hassle

In other business, Stroudsburg Mayor Joseph Small spoke with the board about staffing the Third St. Playground.

Small said that he had been involved in a hassle with the Stroudsburg Borough Council Wednesday night over the question.

Small said that the council — which he likened to "butterflies" — was worried about the legal entanglements involved in staffing a county playground with borough personnel.

Small said that the borough didn't feel that workman's compensation would apply to such personnel if lent to the county.

Small said that over his objections, the council wanted to have the country hire Sam Everitt from the Stroudsburg Playground at $55 per week for the balance of the summer.

"I asked them how they knew Sam was willing to work for the county," Small said. He added that today Everitt indicated he would be interested in taking over the county facility.

Small also said that the borough would have to hire a new man to work at the Stroudsburg Playground to keep the staff auota filled.

Commissioner Stuart Pipher said that the borough council had previously said they would staff the Third St. Playground for the county.

Scout Appeal Denied

In connection with the meeting Monday with representatives of the Boy Scout council which owns property in Monroe County, "all decisions on 1964 appeals remain as heretofore given, and the appeal on 1965 tax assessment by the Valley Forge Council is denied," said commissioner John Price.

The Boy Scout camps indicated they would take the appeals to court if the county denied their appeals.

The commissioners announced they will inspect the Burnley Workshop for the Disabled in East Stroudsburg today at 1:30 p.m.

The commissioners received a quote of $138.75 for a bronze plaque to dedicate the Third St. Playground when it is opened.

PMVB Backs Airport

The board heard a copy of a resolution adopted by the board of directors of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau at its general membership meeting on May 28.

The resolution reads:

"Resolved, that the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Inc., gives its full endorsement to the Pocono Mountains Airport and further, that the association request the county commissioners and the sponsoring municipalities to contribute sufficient funds to complete the necessary buildings at the airport."

"It would have been nicer if the vacation bureau included a check along with the resolution," commissioner Price said after hearing the statement.

The board allocated $5,775 in liquid fuels money to Hamilton Twp. The township has two road projects totalling $13,358. The board also announced that it had received a check from the state for $51,521 for the six months period ending in June for liquid fuel money.

Man Admits 2-Year-Old Burglary In Eastburg

STROUDSBURG — A 38-year-old itinerant pleaded guilty to a two-year-old burglary yesterday in Monroe County Court and was placed on probation for 23 months and fined $200, plus court costs.

Ernest R. Grover admitted he broke into the barroom in the Lackawanna Hotel in East Stroudsburg, May 3, 1962 and took $65 in change. Grover was a roomer at the hotel at the time.

He was arrested June 6 by East Stroudsburg plainclothes police, while standing on a street.

Lawyer Commended

Grover was represented by court-appointed attorney, Walter Olenick. James R. Marsh, presented the commonwealth's case. Travis Seese East Stroudsburg police chief, was the prosecutor.

After sentencing, President Judge Fred W. Davis told the man, "You should consider yourself pretty lucky and be grateful you had the kind of a lawyer you had."

During a lengthy non-support hearing, Judge Davis cautioned Lawrence VanWhy, 18, of 212 St. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, to grow up and take care of his wife and two children . . . "or we will take care of them while we train you."

VanWhy who was involved in an auto accident near the corner of Fifth and Main Streets in Stroudsburg, last Sunday, was ordered to report to the probation office in a week to determine the progress he is making with wife, Kathryn Cherly, also 18.

Mrs. VanWhy told the court her husband was "so drunk last Sunday, I had to carry him up the stairs." She accused him of "always being with the boys. The only thing he ever bought me was a bathing suit and a maternity outfit. My mother bought me everything else."

Judge Davis told the couple, "You are just kids but you have some responsibilities and you will have to grow up."

In other action yesterday the court:

—Ordered Richard King of Marshalls Creek, who owes $3,079 in back support payments to his wife, Edith M. King of Hyde Park, Mass., to appear for a hearing at a later date. King claimed he was never legally married to his wife.

—Ordered Alvin Newell of Stroudsburg, RD 2, to pay his wife, Catherine L. Newell, of Henryville, RD 1, $10 a week for the support of one of his two children.

The other child is being cared for by grandparents. The grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Smith of Henryville, appeared in court and said they did not want Newell to contribute any money for the child's support.

Rights Law Observed

News is the unusual, the unexpected and the important events of the day. Often the quiet and usual events which carry great importance are lost among the headlines.

In the rash of violence, hatred and conflict in some parts of the south since the Civil Rights Law of 1964 went into effect last week, the widespread peaceful observance of the new law in the south has been ignored.

While Negroes and white civil rights workers were being shot, clubbed, beaten, abducted and murdered in Mississippi, these encouraging developments were winning smaller headlines:

1. National Guard troops left Cambridge, Maryland, after a year of occupation in the city which almost saw full scale race war. Many of the city's public accommodations were opened to Negroes without further fighting.

2. In St. Augustine, Florida, where Northern civil rights workers have been battling segregation of public services, many of the city's hotel, motel and restaurant operators decided to obey the new civil rights law's public accommodation section.

3. In Birmingham, Alabama, which received full publicity for its racial battles and police dogs attacking Negroes, most of the city's public accommodation operators agreed to obey the new law.

A thousand other instances of compliance with the law went unreported as the violent and cruel actions of some extremists in the south won top play in the nation's newspapers.

One man took note of this quiet compliance with the new law.

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, the man who is responsible for its enforcement across the nation, said he was pleased and a little surprised by the amount of voluntary compliance with the public accommodation section of the civil rights law which went into effect immediately.

The majority of white Southerners, the majority of white Americans are decent, law-abiding citizens. The majority will obey the civil rights law, even when many disagree with its content and purpose.

While the extremists are winning the headlines, the majority of Americans who are quietly complying with the civil rights law are making history.

They are disproving one of the major arguments of those who fought the civil rights law in Congress. They are proving that new laws can change the habits of Americans.

Slate Belt Dump Cooperation

The State Department of Health has warned seven Slate Belt communities to close open garbage dumps in fields or slate quarries and urged them to cooperate in a joint sanitary landfill garbage site or incinerator.

The seven communities are the boroughs of Bangor, East Bangor, Roseto, Pen Argyl and Portland and Washington and Plainfield Townships.

They agreed June 25 to name representatives to a fact finding committee which will study the costs and problems of a common landfill operation or a common incinerator.

The committee is scheduled to meet July 20 with representatives of the State Health Department at Bangor Borough Hall to begin work.

It is a healthy spirit of cooperation which brought leaders of the seven communities together.

They are all under pressure to conform to state law banning open dumps which breed rodents, contaminate ground water, and threaten public health.

And they can all profit by cooperating in a common solution which will cost each community less than seven separate landfill dumps.

Joseph Pomponi, supervising state sanitarian for Lehigh and Northampton Counties, said at the June 25 meeting, "I did not come here to scare you, but we are going to push this problem."

The state may soon be insisting on similar area landfill operations in other Pocono Mountain communities. Garbage and refuse disposal problems are not peculiar to the Slate Belt area.

But the Slate Belt spirit of cooperative tackling of a common and growing problem sets a good example for other townships and boroughs in the Pocono Mountains.

Pay Hike Laughs

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — Before getting down to the final business of voting themselves — and other government employes, while they were at it — a pay raise, senators gave vent to the need for a little comic relief by clowning it up.

It was a delightful change, after 83 days of civil rights tension, to see them enjoying themselves, and each other. It must set a chap up to be able to vote himself a pay raise.

Not being in a position to vote myself a raise in our outfit, I followed the senate proceedings wistfully. I was especially entranced by the slew of tongue-in-cheek amendments.

Senator Russell Long of Louisiana announced he was working on an amendment to provide that, in order to obtain his increase, a senator must certify that, in his opinion, his services are worth that much more money. When Wisconsin questioned the soundness of the amendment, Senator Long endeavored to win his fellow democrat over by saying syrupily:

"My amendment would make it possible for my friend from Wisconsin to be a cut-rate senator. He could say, 'if the people up there don't want me they can vote for someone else, but I come cheaper.' "

Senator Long said he had been told by one congressman that he gives his entire salary, after taxes, to the church. With a sanctimonious look that brought down the house, Long added:

"If all we are doing is acting upon a proposed pay increase in order that members of congress may donate more to the church, I could not go along with the proposal because it would violate the principle of separation of church and state.'

From the republican side of the chamber, Senator Truston Morton of Kentucky tossed in an amendment calculated to dry up congressional oratory all over the country. It would compel congressmen to turn over to the U.S. treasury all the fees, after deducting the barest expenses, they receive for making outside speeches.

Inasmuch as spouting for pay has become a major source of revenue for many lawmakers this would put them within elbow - rubbing distance of the breadline.

With a stunned look on the face that seems so kindly to pentagon planners and strip-teasers, Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas asked Senator Morton if the amendment would apply while congress was in recess. Morton said it would. Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois beseeched Morton to broaden his amendment to include directors' and legal fees.

"In other words," Morton asked Douglas, "you want me to louse up my amendment so that it cannot be adopted?"

Although not too accustomed to hearing expressions like "louse up" on the senate floor, Douglas recovered sufficiently to suggest that Morton also include dividends from whisky and cigarette stocks.

Senator Clifford P. Case of New Jersey suggested the amendment include all earned income, precipitating this bit of comedy dialogue:

Morton: "I cannot agree with the senator. Suppose I decide to do some moonlighting by baby sitting or raking leaves. Should those earnings be included?"

Case: "I cannot imagine anyone trusting the senator from Kentucky with a daughter of impressionable age."

Morton: "At 57 years of age, I can."

Senator Morton then said he is a director of a bank and gets $35 every time he attends a directors' meeting, but has never been able to make more than two meetings a year because of long sessions imposed by the democratic majority. Minority leader Everett Dirksen took advantage of this to urge withdrawal of the amendment.

"Very well," acquiesced Morton, as the August Chamber rocked with bellylaughter, "I will resign from the bank, and I withdraw the amendment."

'I Just Might Mess Up The Ending To Mr. Aesop's Little Fable'

The Pennsylvania Story

Reporter's Notebook

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook:

The "Eastern" Front: Quiet — Battlefront action (political action, that is) insofar as the Scranton - for-President forces are concerned, moved this week bag and delegate-club to the "western front" in San Francisco in preparation for next week's GOP presidential convention — leaving behind on Capitol Hill a small rear guard "holding forces."

Perhaps one of the more interesting phases of the exodus to the west coast involved the bulky but tender removal of the files on each delegate to the convention Scranton shock troops hope to woo, laid out in triplicate. . . The three sets of previous files were transported on separate trains or planes to avoid complete destruction in case of some sort of transportation foul-up or disaster.

"You'd think we had the weight of the world on our shoulders," commented one puffing headquarters-on - the-move aide. After a pause he added: "Come to think of it, it could turn out to be just that, couldn't it — if the Governor wins next week and in November.' "

In The Forefront — Next week's GOP nominating convention is one convention that finds Pennsylvania f or once in the real forefront!

In addition to the genuine candidacy of Governor William Warren Scranton for the GOPresidential nod (as opposed to the heretofore never seriously considered "favorite son" candidacies of most past chief executives) Pennsylvania U.S. Senator Hugh Scott is not only a member of the GOPlatform Committee but will serve as floor manager at the convention for Governor Scranton.

The Pennsylvania "voice" at the convention this year for once in political moon is heavy, influential — and to be reckoned with, a refreshing change which while it may not see Pennsylvania's Governor Scranton emerge as the ultimate victor, promises something other than mere routine for Keystone Staters.

Meanwhile, Back On The Ranch. . . — While the upcoming Republican Presidential Convention in San Francisco next week unquestionably holds the spotlight, "ye Affaires of State" continue to putt-putt here on Capitol Hill.

A rather interesting compilation was brewed this week by Edwin W. Tompkins, director of the Legislative Reference Bureau, on the activities of his outfit during the past 1964 regular legislative session and the concurrent special session. . .For a limited fiscal affairs only session, the year's regular gathering produced an amazing number of bill preparations by the bureau: 285 bills (11 for the special session), plus 195 resolutions (one for the special), 116 amendments to House bills (87 in the special), five amendments to Senate bills— and 119 amendments to Senate bills during the special session!

Record Oil Well Depth— A new Pennsylvania drilling record was set recently, according to the Department of Internal Affairs, when the Mobil Oil Company No 1 Long well in Centre County exceeded the depth record set in 1962 by Pure Oil Company's No. 1 Blemic well in Bradford County.

The old record was 12,817 feet; the Mobil well was below 13,000 feet with the possibility of going to 15,000 feet . . .A new depth record for a producing well in Pennsylvania was set when Snee and Eberly completed the No 1 well southeast of Uniontown in Fayette County, with gas being produced at a depth of 1,458 feet.

Back To The Wigwan — Quite a pow-wow has been scheduled for this week end at Wyalusing Rocks on U.S. Route 6 and 309 (about 50 miles northwest of Wilkes Barre). . .For three days beginning today there will be an "American Indian Interribal Celebration" under the sponsorship of the Indian League of the Americas.

The occasion will permit visitors to see and learn about the true Indian (as opposed to the "movie" Indian) as they demonstrate various types of basket weaving, wood carving, loom bead work, applique bead work, silver work, leather craft, flint chipping, making of corn husk dolls, Indian cooking and LaCrosse. . . Also part of the celebration will be demonstrations of crafts and dances, with special emphasis on those of the Eastern Woodland Indian.

Don't Let Polls Fool You

Will Republicans remain Republicans in November if Barry Goldwater is nominated at the GOP convention in San Francisco next week?

Polls — you can have them, we don't want them, they are too much for me — indicate that the Arizona senator wouldn't have a chance against President Johnson in a November runoff.

This worried us to some extent. Not that we're on the Goldwater handwagon but we hate to see any fellow run for public office who doesn't have an opportunity to win. Seems like a waste of time to have an election if the pollsters are right in the case of Goldwater.

We called a few stout-hearted GOP in Monroe County to get their views on "If Goldwater's nominated would you vote for him?"

Surprisingly Barry wouldn't suffer too much vote losses in the country. One diehard put it this way:

"I'm not an Goldwater advocate. But one man can't do everything. There is a House and Senate that dicates the security of this land which is not too old.

"I'm not adverse to ultra conservatism. We have room to sway from side to side. The regime of Franklin D. Roosevelt proved this.

"Yes I would vote for him."

A housewife proved more critical of the press than Goldwater. "Yes I'd vote for him. He wouldn't have any problems if the press didn't distort his views."

Another ardent GOP follower commented, "Yes I'd vote for Goldwater. He would be running with the GOP banner and carrying the principles and platform of the party expressed by that party.

"He would be representing that party and would be its leader. Even if his personal views were sometimes to the right of the Republican Party he first and foremost, being the man he is, uphold party principles instead of his own personal views."

One long-time GOP figure in county politics hadn't decided as yet. "I don't know. But I'll tell you one thing I'm a Republican and I've never voted for a Democrat in my life."

Two others who have not been delving into politics more than four years were Goldwater supporters all the way. Practically in unison they said, "We haven't given Scranton (the governor who up to now is Goldwater's chief foe) a thought."

They even doubted they would have voted for Scranton even if he got a sincere and honest draft.

So it went in 10 phone calls and a few conversations on the streets. Thus the only conclusion you can draw is that Goldwater is not the hated candidate polls lead us to believe.

About Town

MONEY: The poor man's credit card.

An old man was breathing his last, as his sons were sitting around the bedside, but the semi-conscious one could hear what they were saying. One son said, "I can get a funeral with forty carriages for twelve hundred dollars." The second son said, "We don't need so many, I can get twenty cars for nine hundred dollars." Another son said, "It should only be for the family anyhow. I can get five cars for three hundred dollars." With that the dying man opened his eyes and moaned. "If one of you will hand me my pants. I'll get up and walk to the cemetery."

The Allen-Scott Report

Rights Conference

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is taking extensive soundings on the advisability of holding a national conference on the newly - enacted far - reaching civil rights measure.

Purpose of such a White House meting would be to "prepare the ground for the smooth and understanding enforcement and operation of the history - making law by mustering the interest and support of state and local authorities, the church, business, labor, civic organizations and responsible volunteer efforts."

Being consulted on this dramatic plan are governors and mayors, clergymen, prominent business and labor leaders, educators, and representatives of a wide variety of organizations.

With a few exceptions, those approached have favored the President's proposal.

Some have advised a series of presidential conferences rather than one big general gathering; that is, separate meetings of state and local officials, clergymen, business and labor, educators, etc.

This suggestion has won support among lieutenants of the President on several grounds: Separate meetings of particular groups would facilitate the consideration of and possible action on specific problems; they would have more widespread publicity and impact.

The fact that this is a major election year is very much on the mind of these inner administration officials.

It is possible the President may disclose his thinking on this significant project in the carefully-prepared statement he will make when he signs the unprecedented civil rights act.

He has discussed that with congressional leaders, particuly Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., floor leader for the legislation in the protracted struggle in the upper chamber. Humphrey strongly favors a conference to "bring about application of civil rights."

"The enactment of this epochal civil rights bill," Humphrey told the President, "is a great step forward, but many problems still beset us and remain to be solved. Foremost among them is how this new law is implemented on the state, local and federal level, and how it is backed up by community action and community support.

"These difficult and complex problems will not be solved merely by the signing of this bill into law. What is essential is to establish a framework of law in which we can earnestly and fairly undertake to work out the many legal and other questions that are certain to arise. The law is the law, but the way it is put into effect will determine its success or failure."

Taking Over — .President Johnson is taking a significant step in seeking to forgo greater control over the Democratic National Committee — where Kennedy elements and influence still abound.

Moving into key places in the committee are James Rowe, one - time Roosevelt brain - truster, 1960 campaign manager for Senator Hubert Humphrey, and long a close adviser of Johnson, and Assistant Secretary of State Fred Dutton, who is giving up that job to devote full time to the President's campaign. An astute and forceful Californian, Dutton is particularly knowledgeable about Western politics and will concentrate on that area.

The high-powered and experienced team of Rowe and Dutton will give the President a hold over committee affairs he has not had up to now.

Present plans call for National Chairman John Bailey remaining, but as little more than a figurehead. That means no change for him as this was his role in the Kennedy administration.

Clifton Carter, Texas confidant of the President, will continue doing special jobs for him. But the organizing and managing of the fall campaign will largely be in the hands of Rowe and Dutton. They have both the President's confidence and know-how in national campaigns, and above all he knows they are loyal to him.

Dear Abby

You Were Wrong But Very Lucky

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I took my four - year-old son and five-month-old daughter downtown to pay some bills. I parked on the street in a shady spot and rolled down the window to keep fresh air in the car.

Then I placed the baby on the seat so she couldn't roll off and hurt herself. I left the car unlocked expecting to be gone only five minutes. I was gone about 15. When I got back, I saw a woman standing beside my car.

When I started to get in, she began to lambaste me. Didn't I know about kidnappers? How dare I leave that baby alone? She also pointed out that I had left the keys in the ignition. When she had her say, her friend showed up with a policeman! They had reported me. I know this might have looked bad, but I am a good mother and resent others butting into my business. What is your opinion?

A GOOD MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The observant woman did you a favor and the policeman could (and perhaps should) have run you in. Careless care of babies is the public's business, whether you "resent" it or not.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a doctor and he said I had to lose 65 pounds. How can I do it when I have no will power? I know I can't stay on a diet because I've tried. I get as hungry as a bear an hour after I eat a meal.

If I walk down the street and happen to catch the smell of something cooking somewhere, I go crazy until I stop and buy a candy bar or a bag or peanuts. If I see something to eat advertised on TV I can't forget it until I go and buy some.

Today I was real good and didn't eat any sweets or bread, but on my way home I saw a dog chewing on a bone, and I had a terrible urge to take it away from him! I wish they could put me in jail for 30 days and feed me nothing but bread and water. Can you, or anybody, help me?

JOE

DEAR JOE: Only you can help yourself. Start over again! Ask your doctor to give you something to discourage your appetite. Then find a picture of a beautifully proportioned man in bathing trunks and tape it on your refrigerator. Once you make up your mind to do it, dieting is a cinch. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Is it abnormal for a young married couple to want to furnish their own home? My husband and I were married a year ago, and we decided to start out with bare rooms and buy good pieces of furniture one at a time as we could afford them. Our relatives won't let us.

I don't want to sound ungrateful, but we have the worst looking collection of unmatched furniture you ever saw. Rugs, lamps, chairs, tables and even pictures relatives thought would fill up the place. We had to act pleased when they gave us these things, but we would rather be without anything than a home cluttered with cast-off monstrosities. How can we tell them?

WILLING TO WAIT

DEAR WILLING: You poor kid: Stuck with a houseful of unmatched furniture instead of nothing! If you really prefer an unfurnished home, start returning the "monstrosities" one by one.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LIVING MODERN": Lots of luck, hu cotit might be wise to remember that God has no double standard.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Healthful Tips For Travel Abroad

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Q: How can a traveler best prepare for 'healthy" holidays in a foreign land?

A: It is always wise to have general medical and dential check-ups before leaving on such a trip. Your doctor will give you assurance and advice. If you have any condition which may require special attention, a letter from your doctor giving the pertinent details will be most helpful if you have to be treated in a strange city.

Q: Should a traveler take along a large supply of medicines?

A. Most drugs and antibiotics are available almost everywhere in the world. There is no need to travel with a built-in pharmacy. It is convenient to have with you some of the simple medications commonly used at home for headache, allergy and indigestion.

Of course, include any special medications prescribed by your physician for an existing condition.

Anticipating illness by traveling with a bulging medical kit is unnecessary. Don't make plans for a "sick" holiday. Fear and fun do not mix.

Q: How does one find a reputable doctor in a foreign land?

A: The most reliable way is by calling the major hospitals of any city. The manager of your hotel will assist you in any emergency. If you have any trouble in getting help, you can always call on the local embassy or consulate. They can be relied on to safeguard your health and security everywhere in the world.

Q: What immunizations are necessary for foreign travel?

A: This depends on the countries you will visit. Smallpox vaccination, renewable every three years, is mandatory for re-entry to the United States from most foreign lands.

Typhoid, paratyphoid, cholera and yellow fever immunizations are required for travel only to certain areas.

Complete information about special immunization requirements can be obtained from the Public Health Service.

Q: Should precautions be taken about drinking water?

A: The water supply of large cities throughout the world is usually safe and well purified. For outlying areas or whenever there is any doubt about the water supply, it is advised that bottled water be used. It is inexpensive and gives added security.

Remember, too, that ice is only as safe as the water supply.

Q: Is milk safe everywhere?

A: Many countries still do not pasteurize milk. Generally fresh milk can be made safer by adequate boiling.

Bon Voyage!

Stories Behind Words

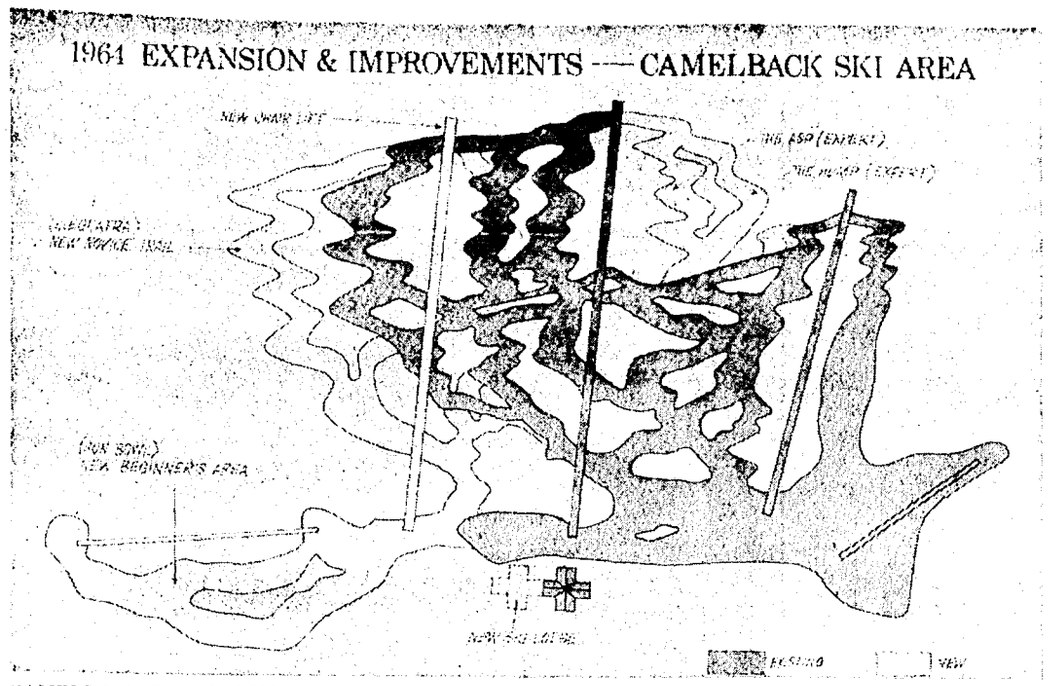
Thumbs Down

Gladiatorial contests were a form of public amusement in ancient Rome. These contests, held in arenas and attended by thousands of spectators, got their name from the fact that gladiators, or swordsmen, fought in them.

A seriously wounded gladiator had the privilege of holding up his hand, which was a signal for the spectators to decide whether he should live or be slain by his opponent. If the spectators held their thumbs up, his life was spared; but, if they turned their thumbs down, he was killed.

This custom gave rise to two current expressions, "thumbs up" and "thumbs down," the former meaning approval or pleasure, and the latter, disapproval.



CAMELBACK EXPANSION—This is a map of Camelback Ski Area near Tannersville showing the existing areas in shading, and the planned expansion in white. Five new ski trails are being added, and the ski lodge capacity is being doubled.

Camelback Will Be $1 Million Area

TANNERSVILLE — Five new ski trails and a new addition to the ski lodge highlight Camelback's expansion program for the 1964-65 winter season, James Moore, Camelback president, said recently.

The announcement of the expansion plans was made at a meeting of the Camelback Ski Corp. stockholders and the Pocono Ski Resort Assn., with Moore and Walter Foeger, founder of the ski school at Camelback and trail designer.

Expansion plans include:

Five new trails — intermediate and novice — designed by Foeger are under construction this summer.

A new chairlift — the second — of 2,800 feet will service four trails.

A new beginners' area, to the left of the base lodge, will be constructed and serviced by an 800-foot lift. With all the new lifts added, the total operation can comfortably handle 3,200 skiers per day.

Compressor power for snow-making machines will be increased 70 per cent, allowing snow on all trails.

Parking areas will expand from the present 1,000 car limit to 1,600 cars.

A new base lodge addition will double the size of the existing facility. Where the ski area served 44,000 skiers last year, double that many are expected this year with night skiing being introduced.

The total estimated cost of the new facilities is $40,000, which, when added to the original investment of $750,000, makes Camelback a million-dollar ski area.

Bruno Attacks 'Corrupt' Democrats

MINISINK HILLS — "The corrupt political mob from Philadelphia wants to name your candidates," Joseph C. Bruno, GOP candidate for Pennsylvania Superior Court said Wednesday night.

Bruno addressed an open meeting of the Monroe County Council of Republican Women at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Minnich in Minisink Hills.

He slashed at the Democratic "gang" that he said wants to name the men to superior court and other offices within the state. Referring to the scandal that rocked Philadelphia a year ago, he said, "The results of the grand jury investigation were never really made known, and we all know why."

Backs Scranton

His answer to the "mob" story was to announce his pride at being included on the party ticket which, he said, "Will be a perfect ticket if it is headed by Bill Scranton."

Calling for strong forces in the Republican party, he noted that votes had been "stolen" in the Blatt-Musmanno race and intimated that it would not have happened under GOP control.

Stumping for his own candidacy, Bruno said, "There is a lack of understanding of the superior court of Pennsylvania. This high court affects the lives of everyone. It handles appeals, domestic, unemployment and workmen's compensation appeals."

"Look at a candidate's background and philosopny," he pointed out. "Then decide the type of man you want on the bench."

Bruno hit again at the Philadelphia corruption, "When public respect for the law breaks down, law and order break down. Look at Philadelphia — Wyatt Earp would rather face a band of Indians then walk the streets of Philadelphia."

Spreading Cancer

"The Democratic political machine is connected with corruption in the city," Bruno went one, "It's like a cancer that spreads, the Poconos shouldn't feel safe, moral decay spreads."

"To survive this moral decay," Bruno said, "We must arouse the voters of Pennsylvania to an awareness of what is happening and what has happened."

Harold Kresge, County GOP Chairman, introduced Bruno and other guests including Edward Dreibe, chairman of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission.

McCormick Boosted

During one comment on the November elections, Kresge said "McCormick (who was not present) and Rooney will split the vote in Northampton County. And, you'll be surprised how well McCormick will do in South Bethlehem (a Rooney stronghold)."

Leo McCormick of Pike County is Republican candidate for Congress from the 15th Congressional District against incumbent Fred B. Rooney of Bethlehem.

Mrs. John Gebbie, president of the Monroe County Council of Republican Women, closed the meeting.

Other candidates and officials attending included H. John Davis, Republican candidate for state assembly; Mrs. Marcella Bach, Barrett Council president; Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, program chairman, and Richard Seidof, West End Club president, and Jeannette Batory, Monroe County register and recorder.

Bank Sees Good Resort Business

PHILADELPHIA — According to the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, Pocono resort business this year is heading for a new record.

The bank reported that "never has the nation's economy been at a higher level than at the start of vacationtime, 1964."

Near perfect weather so far has greatly increased ubsiness, the report said. In addition, a sharp rise in construction has greatly increased both capacity and income.

Many resorts, the report concluded, set new records both in number of guests and in vacation dollars spent over the Fourth of July weekend. No vacancy signs were a common sight by Friday night in the entire area, it said.

Henryville Resort Fire Put Out Fast

HENRYVILLE — Employees, using fire extinguishers, doused a fire early yesterday morning in a dormitory at the Henryville Lodge The fire was caused by a burned out cord on an electric heater.

Mrs. Alvin Ziegler, owner of the lodge, said damage to the dormitory was estimated at $1,000.

Volunteers from the Mt. Pocono and Stroud Township fire companies responded but the fire was out when they arrived.

Mrs. Ziegler said the fire was discovered about 5 a.m. She commended firemen for arriving so promptly.

Mt. Pocono Gas Station Burglarized

MT. POCONO — The Ronald Lutz Atlantic Service Station in Mt. Pocono was burglarized early July 5, Kenneth Miller, Mt. Pocono police chief said yesterday.

The chief estimated time of the burglary between 2 and 5 a.m. It was reported to him at 8:45 a.m.

Stolen were three tool boxes filled with tools, a card of John F. Kennedy half-dollar key rings 10 tires, an air impact wrench, and about $53 in cash.

Miller said he is still investigating the burglary.

Ingram Assumes Scranton's Duties

HARRISBURG (AP)—John W. Ingram, state secretary of administration, said Wednesday he has been left in charge of the governor's ofice while Gov. Scranton is in San Francisco attending the Republican National Convention.

Asked if he was to be considered "acting governor," Ingram replied:

"Under the State Constitution Gov. Scranton is still the governor whether he is in the state or not. My duties are merely administrative and we are in constant touch with the governor in San Francisco."

Depot Workers Prove Two Heads Better Than One

TOBYHANNA — The old saying that two heads are better than one received strong endorsement this week from John Owens and Stephen Stelma of the Tobyhanna Army Depot. Working together they came up with a series of ideas that brought them a total of $205 in awards. Besides all that cash, they also won the coveted honor of "Econo-Misers of the Month."

The two men, who are employed as platers, suggested a rearrangement of tanks, tables and other equipment that has vastly speeded up the flow of work in the Refinishing Shop.

Team In Pacific

Owens and Stelma were part of a winning team years before they met in the depot. Both saw action in the South Pacific during World War II. Stelma as a Navy boatsman's mate who helped land troops, and Owens as a dispatcher and driver with an Army amphibious truck unit.

Owens, who lives in Scranton, began his U.S. Civil Service career at the Baltimore Signal Depot in 1950. He was born in Baltimore and is a graduate of the Dunbar High School in that city. His chief pre-Federal employment was with the City of Baltimore.

Owens likes to collect jazz records, mostly of Count Basie. He has a son and daughter. His wife died some years ago.

Stelma has been employed at Tobyhanna since 1955. A native of Swoyerville, he is a graduate of the St. Johns Parochial School in Luzerne. Before coming to work for the depot, he held jobs in silk mills, at Remington Arms and General Electric.

He is married and the father of two daughters. An avid fisherman, he makes several trips to Canada each year for pike and bass.

Enlarged photos of the two men will be on honored display for one week at the depot's main guard gate, after which they will be presented to them as an additional award by Commanding Officer Co. M. J. Reichel.

Test Your Radio Memory Of Sentimental Favorites

By Jeff Cox
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Who isn't a little sentimental when it comes to those aged radio programs of yesteryear?

Almost anyone who grew up before television will lament the current fare fed American youth on the TV screen.

Is there really any comparison between "The Green Hornet" and "The Sandy Becker Show," or "Popeye Theater?"

Here's a little test designed to check your memories of the radio shows that shaped so many an infantile — and adult —imagination over two decades ago.

You can score up to 25 points. From 20-25 is excellent —you rate a bronze pin with "listen to WAEF" inscribed on it.

From 15-20 is good—your pin may advertise "Tune in to WJZ."

From 10-15 is fair, but radio's impression on you wasn't lasting.

From 0-10, you'd probably have trouble remembering the Jerry Lester Bean Bag Club on TV.

The test:

1. What is the Shadow's name.
2. Who was the Shadow's faithful companion (hint—she's female)?
3. Who sponsored "The Shadow?"
4. What was "The Green Hornet" theme song?
5. Who was the Green Hornet's faithful companion?
6. (Counts four) Name the four inhabitants of Allen's Alley on the old Fred Allen Show.
7. Complete the title, "Mr. _____, Tracer of Lost Persons."
8. What was his theme song?
9. Who walked "down the street, turned into a drugstore, stepped on the scales, and tripped the scales at 300 pounds"?
10. Which radio show opened with footsteps, then a blast on a fog horn?
11. Who sponsored "Public Enemy Number One?"
12. Complete the title, "Nick _____, Ace Detective."
13. What was Jack Armstrong known as?
14. Who "Gottem—daid center?"
15. What distinctive sound opened "The Inner Sanctum?"
16. What was "The Inner Sanctum" sponsor?
17. What is the origin of the phrase, "It comes on like Gangbusters"?
18. What kid's show was sponsored by Ovaltine, and offered red Ovaltine mugs with the star's name on it?
19. Whose commercial ran . . ."When it's round-up time in Texas. . ."
20. Who was the disc jockey for the "Make-believe Ballroom"?
21. What show opened with a telephone ringing, and a man saying ". . . Archie speaking. . ."?
22. Who was the voice of Superman on the radio show of the same name?

American House Appeals Tax

STROUDSBURG — The owners of the American House Hotel on Main St. in Stroudsburg yesterday brought a tax appeal before the Monroe County Commissioners.

The appeal claimed that the appraised market value of the hotel and adjacent complex was too high, compared to the amount the owners had paid for it.

Appearing for the hotel were Edward Katz and Samuel Monatt of Monatt, Inc., owners of the hotel, and their attorney, Maxwell Cohen.

C.A. Nauman, chief assessor, and deputy assessor Robert Stem also were at the appeal hearing, as were commissioners John Price and Stuart Pipher. Chairman Stanley Rader is at a Lion's convention in Canada.

Also attending the meeting were Russell Mervine, solicitor for the county, and chief clerk William Reaser.

After the hotel attorney made the plea, the board agreed to take the appeal under advisement before rendering any decision.

Stem listed the appraised values that he had set on the hotel and complex of buildings that go with it.

A building immediately adjacent to the hotel has been torn down, but renovations have been made to an Ann St. property; also, a small cinder block building has been erected on Main St. near the hotel.

Stem said that the original appraisal on the five buildings and land was $189,027. The buildings include the U.S. Army Reserve Center on Bank Alley, and the buildings from the Colonial Diner parking lot to S. Eighth St.

Stem said that the new appraisal came to $141,731.

Cohen said that the figures was too high.

"You've completely disregarded the purchased price of $125,000, which represents a fair market value.

"It is the figure the willing seller received from the willing buyer. When a new building is erected in the place of the demolished one, our appraised value will be greatly in excess of an equitable market value," Cohen said.

Cohen pointed out that the purchase price for the hotel complex was $175,000, but that $50,000 of that was for existing furnishings and equipment, which are not included in an assessor's figure.

C. A. Nauman said that $50,000 was quite a lot of money for the condition of the furnishings, which means that the $125,000 for the land and buildings would be too low.

The commissioners agreed to study the question of the value of the furnishings, and determine whether the buildings and land were, in fact, worth more than the purchase price listed in Monatt's allocation.

Curtis String Series Starts At Tamiment

TAMIMENT — Curtis String Quartet, performers at Tamiment's 13th annual Chamber Music Festival, open tonight at 9 p.m. The program will include works by Haydn, Kodaly and Beethoven.

Proceeds will benefit the Pocono Art Center.

Saturday's program begins at 3:30 p.m. It will include Mozart's "Quartet in C major," and Schubert's "String Quintet."

Members of the quartet are Jascha Brodsky, violin; Mehli Mehta, violin; Max Aronoff, viola; and Orlando Cole, cello. David Cole, cellist, will be added for the Schubert work.

Tickets may be purchased at the Pocono Art Center, Shawnee, or at Tamiment.

Judge Draws Jail Term

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—N. S. Corn, an Oklahoma Supreme Court justice for 24 years until his semiretirement in 1958, was given an 18-month prison sentence and fined $11,250 after pleading no defense against federal income tax evasion charges.

U.S. Atty. B. Andrew Potter said the government would not contest Corn's plea because he was 80 years old.

But Potter said Corn's plea was motivated by knowledge that, in addition to proof of tax evasion, the government could prove Corn received $150,000 in return for a favorable ruling in a pending 1956 case.

Wife Drops Assault Charge

STROUDSBURG — Two men were released and one was committed to the Monroe County Jail Wednesday.

A charge of assault and battery against Robert Miller, 23, of 33 Garden St., Stroudsburg, was withdrawn yesterday by his wife at a hearing before Stroud Twp. Justice of the Peace Mrs. Ruth E. Miller. He was then released.

Also, Buel Holman paid a $10 fine and was released. He had been committed for 30 days on a charge of disorderly conduct by East Stroudsburg Justice of the Peace Harold Larison.

18 Face Draft In Monroe

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — State Selective Service Headquarters has ordered the Monroe County draft board to provide 18 men for the July draft and pre-induction physical examination calls.

Of this number, two are slated to report to Wilkes-Barre for draft induction on July 23.

The remaining will report for pre-induction physical examinations on the same date.

All registrants will come from local board 23, Stroudsburg.

A look at the statewide scene shows 830 Pennsylvanians being called to fill the state's July quota of 674. In addition 6753 are being called for pre-induction physical examinations.

Barrett Twp. was established by petition to the Courts of Monroe County in 1859. It was so named in honor of Judge George R. Barrett, who was presiding judge at the time. It was formed by taking parts of Pocono and Coolbaugh Twps. The population in 1960 was 2,395.

Elegance Interpreted For Daytime Or After Dark

SATIN AT HOME, or anywhere on the Fall fashion scene is interpreted here by Ben Reif of the New York Couture Group. The white Satin bodice goes over a full, full skirt in a blue and white print. A large scarf matches and highlights the ensemble which was photographed in the Hotel Pierre, New York.

BROCADE for evening elegance by Donald Brooks of the New York Couture Group relies on the starkly simple lines of a skimmer silhouette for impact. Bib collar rises high and overlap scallop slit adds to simplicity. From the Townley collection, photographed in New York's Regency Hotel.

By Bobby Westbrook

Daily Record Family Fare Editor

NEW YORK — The world has lived through wilder, if not woolier, fashions, the editors attending the New York Couture Group showings at the Pierre were reminded at the dinner given by the Military Institute of America. The original costumes used in the film version of "My Fair Lady" were modeled. Even allowing for theatrical exaggeration, the year 1911 was a wild one for fashions.

In contrast to the bushel-basket hats, dripping feather capes, and pouter pigeon dresses, the fashions for fall and winter 1964 look restrained, understated and almost quiet.

Donald Brooks has done a lot of stage costume designing for current Broadway shows but in his collection for Townley, the dramatic effect is there but subdued. Forsaking the straight and narrow path, he uses side closings for everything: dresses, coats and suits.

His necklines are interesting, particularly the cowl neckline. In one simple dress, for instance the cowl starts high and falls in solf folds which fill in the neckline of the coordinated blazer like an ascot. Other distinctive necklines are his crescent collars for both day and evening. An evening suit of white embroidered satin with a slightly concave jacket is worn over a black matte jersey blouse with a turtle neckline. The chain mail of the Crusaders is translated into cocktail dresses of all over jeweled chiffon and silver or gold bugle beads, uninterrupted down to the wrist-length sleeces.

Hannah Troy goes in for restraint, too, for most of her fashions. She promotes the profile silhouette where the back of the dress hangs straight and has a lifted bosom achieved by cut or bias. Her coats in the same silhouette have a new swivel closing for casual wrapping or held together at the pocket line.

Hannoh Troy illustrates another fashion trend, not of style but of price. This year she joins the long parade of couture designers who have set up a secondary line to their original high-priced spread. A sort of a budget line if you consider $50 to $90 in your budget It's another indication that high fashions are being worn not only by city sophosticates by the doctors' wives (one to a doctor, please in small towns, too.

Miss Troy can also lapse into fuss and feathers, however. One evening dress of white cut velvet has a skirt composed of uncurled ostrich feathers, which inspired the quip: "A woman wouldn't dare sit down in that dress or she'd look as if she were nesting."

Eggs would be more comfortable to sit on than some of the crystal drops which Ben Reig uses for his collection of "chandelier" dresses. They are dazzling and made for that Grand Entrance. His whole collection is keyed to what he calls "compositions." Suits, or the current substitute, dresses with jackets have lively jackets, skirts on the move and blouses as part of the planned picture.

Particularly impressive are his "compositions for the fast traveler." There is a reversible coat of imported camel and checked wool with a companion dress of camel brushed wool, and another coat of electra blue tweed with a white jersey lining to match its white jersey dress.

Jo Copeland, designing for Pattullo, goes all out for curves, definitely forsaking what she called the "Sandwich Board" silhouette of several seasons. One fleecy sheer wool in a spicy ginger color is cut into a soft suit with a definite waistline jacket, showing flap pockets over a flaring swirl of a bias cut skirt which she called the "Riding habit look for town."

Another Copeland costume idea is the standing collar on a clipped suit jacket, built high and cup-like above firm shoulders and set-in sleeves.

The Davidow idea is simple: A Davidow suit never goes out of style. For that very reason a Davidow suit is not among the fashion pioneers, either. This season, they may be a quarter of a millimeter shorter. Pleated skirts, wrap-around skirts, tuck-in shirts and overblouses modestly echo current trends.

Davidow news is in new colors and combinations with black and white important with the wrap around skirt in the white wool boucle Chanel-flavoried suit, braided in navy and buttoned in brass. Or camel's hair in a classic suit with a shaped but not nipped jacket. Good too are suits of silk tweed, ideal for year-round wear.

But back to the millinery at the dinner at the New York Hilton and probably the first Fall note in many a woman's wardrobe. While not as big as the 1911 version, there is much the same feeling of palmy days in soft supple material. Important shapes are the big berets, worn covering all the hair, on the back of the head or cocked to the side. Turbans are big with a focus on back interest. There are head-hugging helmet caps, and big and little brims. And of course some wild ones—like the Boy Scoutmasters with a chin strap.

All fashion editors need as they bus around New York is a Scoutmaster. One of the places they visited was the Lincoln Center of the Performing Arts. Typical of their state of mind is that on seeing the fountain in the court, one explained: "Oh a three-tiered fountain." It is, too, with the tiers rising and falling at intervals, climaxed by a sort of center geyser. It was effective even for the noon-time luncheon by Burlington Mills held at the New York State Theatre at the Center, and should be beautiful by night.

Night or day, the same couldn't be said for the giant marble statues in the foyer. The size was right because of the great height of the room, rising to four grilled, balconied stories. But their shapes! They would look better in those stretch fabrics which Burlington is so proud of this year, and no wonder—everything stretches.

Even the length of the days, with a dinner excursion to the New York Hilton for the Millinery Institute showings. Top milliners were scattered at various tables and we drew Miss Mary, very handsome in a red velvet hat. And we ate chicken a la Kiev again. That's breast of chicken wrapped around a pat of butter, this time flavored with ham.

It was delicious but the most unusual meal to date was at the Fonde Del Sol restaurant in the Time and Life Building, as the guests of Clairol, who evidently concentrates on hair not weight problems. Started with tortillas with pepper sauce, with cheese, included avacado salad and tostada, and more tortillas plus tacos and frijoles, after which the Gaucho-barbecued beef ribs loomed as large as one cow per customer, followed by Mexican coffee, chocolate candy cake and cheese cake.

And Virginia Graham and New York's leading hair stylists with models wearing their styles. One thing they had in common was that the nape of the neck and the ears both show.

When a style mood changes so does everything else from hair styles and hats to stocking shades and shoe styles, from cosmetics to jewelry to handbags.

Styles in paintings change, too, as editors discovered when they toured the new "Mother and Child Exhibit in Modern Art" which just opened at the Time and Life Building, and which will be touring the country. They've got the big ones: Salvador Dali, Pablo Picasso, Mary Casatt, Marc Chagall, Henri Matisse—and a lot of editors who sadly admitted they don't know as much about modern art as modern fashions.

AMBER FOREVER in Fall collection by Pattullo-Jo Copeland done in Lesur wool. Taste and style with easy simplicity adds up to the elegant look in this stole dress, for the New York Couture Group.

PLAID IN MUTED TONES of shaded gold from Davidow's collection gives a new treatment to the high notch collar of the jacket which sports four patch pockets and brass buttons. Bracelet length sleeves show off soft gloves and add dash to mohair woolen suiting.

RED LINING warms this dress and jacket costume by Hannah Troy. The dress, in lightweight wool, picks up the gray from the plaid jacket. Tab and button highlights jewel necklined sheath. Three-quarter sleeves show off soft gloves.

WE SAY THE NEW LAKE VALHALLA IS ONE OF THE LOVELIEST SPOTS IN THE POCNOS (BUT WE'RE PREJUDICED) COME SEE FOR YOURSELF!

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

To be utterly honest about it, I'm not a woman particularly interested in meeting every new man who arrives in our store. But there's one gentleman I can hardly wait to see and talk with, and I certainly mean to be here when he arrives to spend Friday and Saturday, July 17th and 18th, with us. I'm not the only one who is pleased about his visit either . . . I think Bill Wells, Carrie Cusk, and their associates in the woman's Sportswear department are just as excited as I.

About the only thing I can tell you about him personally is that his name is Arthur Paulin . . . he is a sales representative for Tailorbrooke, maker of those marvelously smart, wearable suits for women . . . and he likes to fish. He plans to spend part of his time in the Poconos doing just that, according to Bill Wells . . . and the remainder of the time he will be located in our Keystone Room, along with a very complete trunk showing of Tailorbrookes.

I have never owned a Tailorbrooke suit . . . but like most women, I can certainly imagine the great joy of doing so. Nothing in the world is more practical than a good suit. No other garment in her wardrobe costumes a woman so smartly, or with such versatility. A suit is perfect for business . . . with a tailored blouse it is trim and crisp . . . utterly correct. With a dressy blouse it is flattering and feminine for wear away from the office. And with a variety of blouses, it can accompany the travelin' gal around the world, adapting itself to a variety of climates and a vast round of adventuring. As one well dressed actress puts it, "Give me a good suit well accessorized . . . an attractive sheath . . . and a toothbrush, and I could spend six months on the road without shopping."

Bill tells me that Mr. Paulin will arrive with a vast number of Tailorbrooke suits in all sizes and styles. As a matter of fact, he guarantees to be able to fit ANY figure, however large or petite. Some of the suits may be purchased from stock; others can be special ordered. But there is absolutely no "problem figure" that is too difficult for Tailorbrooke to fit. This is a guarantee.

And here is a bonus: when you purchase a Tailorbrooke suit during Mr. Paulin's visit you will be given either enough crepe to match the lining for a blouse, or enough of the suiting for a hat.

Soon . . . why not jot down a visit to Wyckoff's Keystone Room on your calendar for July 17th or 18th? There may be questions about Tailorbrooke which you would like Mr. Paulin to answer . . . and surely you will wish to see all the Tailorbrooke fabrics, and the many styles, some of which may not appear on our Wyckoff racks.

A suit is an investment that you will enjoy for years . . . an investment that will pay big dividends in smartness, whether you stay at home in a quiet town, or window shop along Fifth Avenue. These suits will be so nearly custom-tailored to you, they cannot help but be "suited to your taste." And Tailorbrooke is synonomous with perfect tailoring.

Cy Barrett Says

Successful Women

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

We made some triangular cloth babushkas and handpainted them. Quite a few people, seeing our products on women's heads, admired them and think we should go into business. Our husbands laugh at our proposed venture and say we will have a tough time selling our work. We need your help to keep our sense of humor.

JERI AND JOAN

DEAR JERI AND JOAN:

Without question, you girls can gleefully find a market for your handpainted curler-hiders. Hand-crafted, personalized merchandise is growing in demand. Note the success of Mrs. Ethel Korman, a divorcee who tied in with the handcraft demand.

When her marriage hit the shoals in 1960, she turned to her former hobby, painting neckties. She now supports herself and three children entirely through this work.

Attractively decorated with a firm's insignia (and initials or name of the wearer), Mrs. Korman's ties are used as sales incentives or salesman's conversation starters by companies of all sizes.

An offshoot of the corporate business has been a continuing number of requests for handpainted neckwear as gifts. Gift buyers send Mrs. Korman a summary of the recipient's personality and interests. She then makes personalized tie designs and submits them for approval.

I suggest you follow Mrs. Korman's pattern in reverse. Start by handpainting babushkas as gifts, advertising to gift givers in your newspaper. As samples of your work are seen bobbing down supermarket aisles and at sports events, your babushkas will take hold. Then, move toward producing for promotional profits. Keep your husbands laughing, girls, until they discover what is funny.

CY

DEAR CY:

In the future, it is expected husbands and wives will be matched by computers. Blood types, temperaments, cultural quotients and hereditary factors will be fed to a mechanical brain and names of possible spouses will emerge. Why can't we now put the computer to work matching individual workers with jobs?

MRS. LUX

DEAR MRS. LUX:

The computer is capable of matching individual's aptitudes to specific jobs, but there's a hitch. By the time the machine is programmed, the job applicant is going steady with another company.

CY

DEAR CY:

Can you tell me more of how Patch Caradine, Stephen Bruce and Calvin Holt made a success of their general store, starting in a basement in 1956? I have been trying to make a gift shop in my home pay, and more goes out for dust cloths than comes in from customers.

BERNICE G. B.

DEAR BERNICE:

Serendipity 3, and the three young enterprisers who founded it, have a flair for the unusual which they fan with oxygen. They merchandise creativity, uninhibited good taste through what they term "The World's Most General Store." Since the beginning, shocking pink and blazing sun orange were featured in decor and shopping bags.

From Methodist missionaries, the three adopted muu-muus and tailored them to the cover of "Vogue." Another innovation with the preposterous name of "Olive Oyl" was also plastered on that exalted fashion publication's front.

In a trip through Serendipity 3, you may stumble over (or through) Van Johnson's favorite Texas-style chili, Togetherness soap (Marked "His" and "Mine") and fedora hats for lady bankers. The public is bored, Bernice. It will seriously pay money for laughs and the uplift that only the unusual can deliver.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Friday, July 10, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Ask if in doubt, but do not become unsettled at every sign of complexity. In general, hold the line against wavering and lack of confidence. Exploit your talent.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Fine Venus influences encourage the best use of your talents now. Don't abandon new projects without giving them fair trial. There is more room at the top than you may believe.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — You may have an unusual opportunity to advance your interests immediately — one which could have an important bearing on your future as well. Be ready to accept.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — This is no time for dwelling on old errors, except to recognize that they must not be repeated. On with your present program — especially if it's been built on a solid foundation and the result of progressive ideas.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Do not lower your dignity by using strong-arm or other forceful measures to achieve success. You will accomplish more through calmness, serenity.

August 24 to September 23 — A new goal in mind? Stop to ascertain first what is really required, then note how and where to achieve it. A consultation with knowledgeable heads could help.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Why not step out in more venturesome manner if you have the facts and your intuition tells you that the time is ripe? If not reckless, you might walk right into a wonderful new opportunity.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — A chance now to see things in quiet perspective. Stand back to look things over — but only those concerned with the present; forget the past.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter highly auspicious. Day spells action, determination, aggressiveness. Rouse yourself to that added effort which brings such sweet compensation.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Crush any inclination to postpone things. As with Sagittarius, NOW is the time for action. Strike while the time is propitious and the opposition is off balance. In your eagerness, however, don't swerve off on a tangent — it could cause delay.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Direct your very effective energies down a worthwhile road now. You can be adroit, resourceful, a winner in any competition, when you will. WIN NOW.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — The emphasis now is on choosing the correct project on which to shower your handiwork. But be practical. No wishful thinking.

YOU BORN TODAY make natural teachers, loving companions. You have talents galore for success. Choose a goal and drive a straight line toward it, then use your other gifts in an avocation. Never neutral, you select a side and defend it against any odds. There are sturdy patriots in Cancer. Also, fine entertainers, top-flight financiers and brilliant inventors. Birthdate of J. A. McNeill Whistler, artist; Wm. Blackstone, writer on law; David Brinkley, news commentator.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Washington Report

Tuomioja, Greeks, Turks Discuss Cyprus Situation

By Richard Spong
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Sakari S. Tuomioja, the Finnish diplomat who is acting as United Nations mediator in the Cyprus dispute, met with Greek and Turkish representatives Thursday probably separately — in a new effort to work out an agreement.

Cyprus, beginning as essentially a British problem, has been allowed to expand and become a serious threat to the Western Alliance. Basically the conflict involves two inimical communities.

According to 1962 official estimates, Greek Cypriotes represent about 77.8 per cent of the 591,000 population; Turkish Cypriotes, about 17.5 per cent. The others are mostly Jews and Armenians.

The Greek Cypriotes ardently desire enosis — union with Greece. The Turkish community is determined to prevent enosis at any cost — partition of the island if necessary. Cyprus is about half the size of New Jersey and is the third largest island in the Mediterranean.

Britian took over from Turkey the administration of Cyprus in 1878. During World War I the British offered Cyprus to Greece on condition that Greece would immediately enter the war on the Allied side. The Greeks rejected the offer, and it was not renewed. Nevertheless, both Greeks and Greek Cypriotes look back to this offer as a justification for enosis.

Cyprus after World War II was keyed by the British to the defense of Suez. However, as British sway ebbed from Asia and Africa, Cyprus became a wasting asset. Internal disorder and the strife between the two communities proved increasingly embarrassing. Finally, in agreements reached in Zurich and London in 1959, Cyprus was given independence.

Britain retained military bases. Archbishop Makarios was elected President, and a start on a new era was made. But the Zurich - London agreements imposed virtually impossible ground rules on the new regime.

The President of the Republic is elected from the Greek community, and the Vice President from the Turkish community. The President appoints seven and the Vice President three of the Council of Ministers. Both the President and Vice President have a veto over the Council's decisions — which are to be taken by a majority vote — when foreign affairs, defense, or security is involved. The unicameral legislature has 50 seats; 35 reserved for the Greek community; 15 for the Turkish community.

Lema Grabs British Lead

By JOHN FARROW

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) —Champagne Tony Lema, posting one of history's great rounds over the St. Andrews Old Course, which he saw for the first time three days ago, scored a four-under par 68 Thursday for the halfway lead in the British Open Golf Championship.

The California pro had a 36-hole total of 141, two strokes better than long-hitting Harry Weetman of Britain.

Lema, winner of three U.S. tournaments last month and on his first trip to Britain, included an eagle two in his round, fashioned in North Sea gales that almost blew strong men down for the second straight day.

With the wind at his back, the star from San Leandro pounded his drive at the 312-yard 12th hole on the green and sank a 25-foot putt for an eagle.

Lema had three birdies — at the sixth, ninth and 14th—and one bogey, on the fifth, where he drove into the rough and then three-putted.

Lema's birdie putt at the 18th rimmed the cup and stayed out.

It was the first round under 70 since the tournament started. Lema said he had left his favorite club—the wedge—in the bag.

"You can't hit high shots to the greens in this wind," he said. "You've got to run the ball up and to the flag."

Weetman added a 71 to an opening 72 for a 143 that looked as if it would stand up for the halfway lead, until Lema, starting toward the end of the pack, turned it on.

Bruce Devlin of Australia, the former plumber's assistant, shot his second straight 72 for 144, matching Christy O'Connor of Ireland, 71-73.

Big Jack Nicklaus, the Ohio Golden Bear who has won every major title but this one, had an awful time on the huge St. Andrews greens and finished with 74. It left him at 150, nine strokes back of Lema.

The field was trimmed to the low 45 scorers for Friday's final 36 holes, with 153 the cut-off point.

Five of the eight Americans in the field made it. In addition to Lema and Nicklaus, Doug Ford of Yonkers, N.Y., and Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., had 151 and Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., who lost in a playoff last year, was the last man in with 153.

Chi-Cubs Given Willies: Mays' 25th, McCovey's 12th

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants spiced a 16-hit attack with homers by Willie Mays and Willie McCovey and routed the Chicago Cubs 9-4 Thursday.

Although the second-place Giants chased Chicago's 11-game winner Larry Jackson, their own starter, Jack Sanford, had to quit in the second inning with a numbed right arm.

One of the Giants' four regular starters, Sanford was to fly to San Francisco Thursday night for a thorough examination of apparent impaired circulation in his pitching arm.

The victory went to Gaylord Perry, who replaced Sanford with two out in the second and gave up seven hits including pinch - hitter Len Gabrielson's none-on homer in the fifth. Perry needed help from Bob Shaw in the ninth after yielding two more runs.

Jackson, now 11-6, yielded Mays' 25th homer in the first, gave up two second-inning runs mainly on shaky Cub throwing, and retreated in a three-run Giant fifth.

Campanella Boys Sharp

CHESHIRE, Conn. (AP) — Two brothers named Campanella are making athletic history at Cheshire Academy.

They're Roy, 15, and Tony, 13, and they're the sons Roy Campanella, the Brooklyn Dodgers' great baseball catcher who was paralyzed in a car wreck several years ago.

Neither boy has been out for baseball, but Tony recently broke the academy's junior school record for the 60-yard dash, and Roy starred in junior football and basketball last season.

Tony covered the 60 yards in :06.7.

Mauch Using Yank Philosophy

By Melvin Durslag

LOS ANGELES — Casey Stengel remarked one time that the Yankees weren't paying him to win every game. "They're only paying me to win six times out of 10," he said.

This is pretty much the way that Gene Mauch, the manager of the Phillies and a very prominent figure in National League affairs these days, looks at things.

Gene reduces matters to even simpler components. He doesn't feel compelled to concentrate on upper division clubs. He will take his six from anyone.

With this rationale, he laughed at those who described recent games with San Francisco, for instance, as the "big series."

He is euqlly amused by reports that he had to get past those critical games against Koufax and Drysdale in Los Angeles last week.

"There is no such thing as a 'big series' in this league," says Gene, "unless, of course, you are head-and-head at the end of September and two teams for playing for the pennant.

"Baseball has become such a game of arithmetic that you hardly give thought anymore to a special opponent. Your goal is to knock out your six-out-of-ten almost as if the other guys are playing in uniforms that have no names.

No Soft Touches

"Say, for instance, that we worry about the Giants. Then we play the Cubs, who are a sixth place team. They have pitchers like Ellsworth, Jackson and Buhl, who have won about 31 games already. They have hitters like Williams, Santo and Banks.

"The ease with which a team like this can belt you over makes it ridiculous to worry about the Giants, the Dodgers, or anyone else in particular."

After a recent series in St. Louis, Mauch picked up a newspaper to read that the Phillies had gone into a "nose-dive."

"We played the Cards four games," said Gene. "We won two. That's about all you can expect in St. Louis. If we win four of our next six, we're back on schedule."

The manager of what once baseball's most degraded team, Mauch is delighted, though not at all surprised to find the Phillies in the pennant struggle this year.

"From June 25, 1963, until the end of the season, we played .600 ball," says Gene. "There was no reason for us to get worse this year. We had that miserable start in '63 and couldn't catch up once we began to roll."

Dodgers Face Problem

In a mathematical way, Mauch points out that the Dodgers are going to face a similar problem should they start to get hot this season.

"In order to overtake teams that are playing .600 ball," says Mauch, "you have to start playing .700 ball. And this is almost impossible in the National League."

Not yet playing .500 ball, the Dodgers, of course, have a sizable amount of ground to cover if they plan to retain the championship they won last year.

A chronic cellar team, not to mention a basket case and a schnook, the Phillies struggled to regain their self - respect. And now that they have it, they are determined to go to bigger things.

They remind you of people who get rich. A guy who has nothing starts out to make money, enduring untold hardship to attain this goal, the ultimate in life.

Once he has money, he wants to get his picture into the paper. To do this, he buys race horses or a football team.

Next, he wants to be important in civic affairs and in the arts. And the last step in his transformation? He runs for public office.

Watching the progress of the Phils — today .600 ball, tomorrow the world — we are expecting them at any time to give advice to the rest of Philadelphia.

Informed the other night that Sandy Koufax, who had been injured slightly, would start against the Phillies, Mauch observed that Sandy's drawing power was a fallacy.

"He keeps people home," said Gene.

"Who, for instance?" he was asked.

"My mother. She'll never come out to the park when Koufax is pitching against us. She's afraid of him."

In his last two starts against the Phils, Koufax has beaten them on a no-hitter and on a five-hitter, striking out 12 and 10, respectively.

It is also a fact that he now has trimmed Philadelphia eight in a row, making Mauch's quota of six-for-ten come considerably harder.

Unmistakably, Gene's mother knows what she's doing.

Terrell Seeks 11th Straight Win

NEW YORK (AP) —Third-ranked heavyweight Ernie Terrell of Chicago, will be seeking his 11th straight victory Friday night at Madison Square Garden when he takes on Bob Foster of Washington, D.C., in a 10-round feature bout.

The 206-pound Terrell, who has won 33 bouts while losing only four, hopes to meet former champion Floyd Patterson if he gets by the 182-pound Foster.

"I know I can beat Patterson," said the 25-year-old Terrell, "and I'll prove it if he'll get in the ring with me right after I get through with Foster," Foster."

Terrell figures to have his problems with Foster, who has won 14 of 16 bouts, his last three by knockouts.

"It's the same old story," said an irate Terrell as he concluded training Thursday. "Patterson beat a washed-up Eddie Machen and then starts hollering for another title shot.

"In the meantime, all the guys in the heavyweight division who have been fighting their hearts out for a title chance have to stand by and wait. If they give him another shot at the title, a lot of us might as well quit.

"Patterson has been giving false impressions of being a fighter for a long time now, and he's getting away with it. There are a lot of fighters who can beat him. If he's a real contender, let him prove it by fighting me."

Conn. Team Top Duckpins

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — The mixed doubles team of Maureen Gilberto of Hartford, Conn., and Howie Hampton of Manchester, Conn., set a world duckpin bowling record recently in the New England tournament. They bowled a 370 game en route to a 900 series.

In the second game, Mrs. Gilberto totaled 195 and Hampton 175 for a combined score of 370. It betters the listed mark of 360 posted by Lillian Russell and John Guise, both of Baltimore.

Pen Argyl Club Presents Golden Deeds Award

PEN ARGYL — Roy Ealey, one of Pen Argyl's leading citizens, received the Golden Deeds Award at the Pen Argyl Exchange Club's annual family picnic at Woena Park Wednesday night.

The award, one of the highest given to any individual, is for public service in the community.

Ealey is known for his many handicrafts with slate. They can be seen in many parts of the country.

At the age of 12, he went to work in the slate quarries and has been working continuously at this — always thinking of some new use for slate, both for beauty and usefulness.

Some of the first things he made of slate were Bibles, and comb cases, which he gave to his friends and relatives. In 1941, he made lamps of slate which he donated to every room in the isolation Ward of the Doctor's Hospital in Philadelphia.

During World War II, he made frames for patriotic pictures which were distributed throughout the country. In 1959, he prepared a specially engraved checkerboard which a group of students from the Pen Argyl Junior High School presented to the National Education Assn.

Many of the Exchange Club's summer outings are held at the Ealey farm. He is very active in club affairs.

At the 1964 state convention, he was honored as "Mr. Exchange" for the State of Pennsylvania.

Wednesday's award was presented Ealey by Harry Stitt, past state president of the Exchange Club.

George Gary, president of the Exchange Club, gave him a book of golden deeds made of slate by Ealey's son, Robert.

Among the 150 people present were Harold Creager of Easton, Immediate Past President of the Exchange Club; Edgar Rau of Easton, exchange club state secretary; Carl Kratzer of Catasaqua, district four governor of the club; and Clayton B. Stigner of Germantown, district two past governor.

Police Uncover U.S. Mail Cache

WATER MIL, N.Y. (AP) — Police Tuesday uncovered two tons of undelivered mail in the garage of a 75-year-old retired letter carrier. The mail dated back to 1953 and 1954.

Postal authorities said the unopened mail, 10 per cent of which was first class and the balance circulars and advertising matter, was found in the garage of Lorin F. Shipper.

Shipper, police said, retired in 1956 after 34 years as a letter carrier.

Roy Peterson, Southampton postmaster, said a check of the route for which the mail was designated turned up few householders who had missed expected mail during the two-year period.

Peterson said no action could be taken against Shipper because the five-year statute of limitations for such an offense had expired.

Shipper gave no explanation.

Split Rock Increases Facilities

LAKE HARMONY, — Construction of new docking facilities for sailboats, motorboats, canoes and rowboats has been completed at Split Rock Lodge, on Lake Harmony in the Western Poconos.

All new piers were built in time for the start of an expected banner summer season for this year-round sports and vacation center. An on-the-spot check reveals that reservations for July and August are at near capacity, according to W. D. Herrmann, president.

The sandy beaches of spring-fed Lake Harmony are drawing most of the recreation enthusiasts. The large number of warm sunny days in the late spring and early summer have made the lakefront on the doorstep of the Lodge the most popular spot on the 31,000 acre Split Rock estate.

The aquatic sports of sailboating, canoeing and rowboating are getting special attention. Trained instructors are on hand to assist the water-minded vacationers in their attempt to cool off.

Fishing is also holding its own with the other favored summer sports. The Split Rock streams, the Tobyhanna and Tunkhannock, are stocked regularly with brook, brown and rainbow trout. Vacation fisherman can rent or buy fishing gear at the Lodge sporting goods store. Fishing licenses for residents and non-residents are available at the Lodge.

The month of June drew large numbers of family groups and newlweds, too, Herrmann reported. "Split Rock is a diversified spot which caters to all tastes," said Herrmann. "We offer pure relaxation to those who just want to take it easy in the mountains. For those who want planned activity, we have everything."

Split Rock's eight tennis courts are enjoying great popularity. The composition base courts, four of them equipped with gallery sections for seating spectators, are excellent and playable no matter what the weather.

Other sports available include riding, bicycling, archery, outdoor shuffleboard, volleyball, softball, badminton, quoits, croquet, ping pong, baseball, basketball, trap shooting and skeet shooting. A golf course is located within easy driving distance.

The views on the winding mountain trails through Split Rock preserve cause many nature-lovers to participate in hiking, bicycling and horseback riding. The large grounds surrounding the Lodge permit these activities to range literally miles in each direction.

The display of mountain laurel this year was unusually luxurious and held forth through June and into July, Herrmann reported.

Servicemen's Corner

Army 1s Lt. James A. Fuller, whose wife, Patricia, lives in Pocono Pines, received the Air Medal during ceremonies in Vietnam, June 27.

Lt. Fuller received the award for meritorious achievement while engaged in aerial combat support of ground forces of the Republic of Vietnam.

He is a 1956 graduate of Fort Fairfield, Maine, High School and the son of Mrs. Virginia M. Greenier, 29 Lenox St., Hartford, Conn.

Marine PFC Daniel J. Zilko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Walters of RD 5, Stroudsburg, completed four weeks of individual combat training April 3 at the First Infantry Training Regiment, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

While with the regiment, Zilko was trained in tactical and combat skills needed for battle. Emphasis was placed on the small unit tactic, the four men fire team and the 14 man squad.

Cuban Seaman Jumps Ship

CARTEGENA, Spain (AP)— Maritime authorities said yesterday a Cuban seaman from the Lebanese-registered freighter Mimosa jumped overboard and swam ashore to claim political asylum here. The vessel had delivered a cargo of sugar from Cuba.

Judge Sets Site For Rights Trial

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U. S. District Court Judge Thomas J. Clary says the trials of 250 civil rights demonstrators arrested last March and April in Chester, Pa., must be held in Delaware County Court.

Judge Clary, in a ruling Monday said the federal court could take no original jurisdiction as requested by attorneys for the arrested demonstrators.

The judge also declined to stay his order returning the cases to the Pennsylvania court on grounds that his ruling was not reviewable by the U. S. Circuit Court.

Atty. Anthony G. Amsterdam, representing the alleged offenders, argued that his clients wouldn't receive a fair trial at Media, Pa.

He declared, in his losing petition, that the 250 were arrested "with the sole purpose and effect of harassing them and to prevent them from exercising their constitutional rights."

Amsterdam added that the harassment was "pursuant to a policy of racial discrimination against Negroes and repression of Negroes' free speech by the elected and appointed officials of the city of Chester and Delaware County."

The case had been argued before Judge Clary last June 30. The transfer of the cases out of Delaware County was opposed by Dist. Atty. Paul R. Sand.

NOTICE

Original sale postponed from Sat., July 11, 1964 until Sat., August 1, 1964

Administrator's Sale of Real Property Estate of Harry Quick, Deceased.

The undersigned will sell to the highest bidder or bidders for cash the following described real property of the deceased Harry Quick in the Village of Fairview Lake, Palmyra Township, Pike County, Pennsylvania, on Saturday, August 1, 1964,

PARCEL #1: A 20.5 acre parcel of land bordering on State Highway Route #390 approximately one half mile South of the Tafton, Pennsylvania Post Office and directly across from property now owned by Evelyn Segrist (formerly Totem Pole Inn) and having a frontage on State Highway Route #390 of approximately 697 feet. Situate on this Parcel is a two-story frame farmhouse, a barn and several outbuildings. Parcel 1 will be sold at the residence of the deceased at 10:00 A. M., E. D. S. T.

PARCEL #2: A piece of land consisting of 30.6 acres, more or less, and bounding on the "Mill Pond," but containing no access to the waters of the said "Mill Pond." This property was formerly the Mains farm. This property is located approximately 3558.1 feet East-Southeast from the Southeasterly corner of Parcel #1 described above. Parcel #2 and Parcel #3 will be considered one parcel and will be sold at 10:30 A. M., E. D. S. T. at the residence of Harry Quick.

Parcel #3: A strip of land 21.75 feet in width, extending from Parcel #1 to Parcel #2 noted above and being the only right of way to gain access and being a right of way to gain access to Parcel #2 above. The length of this strip of land is approximately 2258.1 feet.

At 11:00 A. M., E. D. S. T., all three parcels will be offered for sale in one package and if the total price bid for the three parcels exceeds the aggregate total of the individual bids for the separate parcels the latter will receive the property.

Ten per cent of bids to be paid at time of sale and balance by certified check upon delivery of deed for such title as was vested in decedent, said deed to be delivered within thirty (30) days of sale.

The right to accept or reject any or all bids is reserved.
